GENERAL WU IN CONTROL OF PEKING

Collapse of Chang Forces After Defeat and Rout of Thursday Believed to be End of Hostilities

GENERAL CHANG IS REPORTED
FLEEING BACK TO MUKDEN

Naval Attack Upon Peking-Mukden Railroad Forbidden by Allies

PEKING.—By The Associated Press.
General Wu Pei Fu was in control of Peking at noon Friday and Gen.
Tsun, whose forces he routed Thursday in a fierce battle south of the capital, was reported fleeing to Mukden. Chang's army is retreating in disorder toward Tien Tsin.
Observers here believe Chang's sudden collapse has ended the hostilities.
City Still Isolated

All fighting in the vicinity of Peking had ceased Friday morning but the city remained isolated so far as radio communication was concerned.

General Wu was reported within a few hours' travel of Peking, but he had not yet decided whether to enter the capital, apparently waiting the result of the fighting in the district of Tien Tsin. He was quoted as saying he would never be contented until he had either captured Chang Tse Lin or driven him to Mukden. This was taken as meaning that he was not concerned about entering Peking immediately, although nothing prevented his doing so.

Chang's Defeat Rally
After Chang's defeat Thursday he took up a position along the Peking-Tien Tsin railroad between Lanz Feng and Lafa. His purpose apparently was to rally his forces and prepare for a final attack upon Tien Tsin.
He was reported as expressing anger
at the action of his troops at Chang Shi Tien and Feng Tai, where they retreated in disorder, leaving the way open for a direct march by Wu on Peking.

Almond Strauss, commander of the American Asiatic fleet, left in an armed ship this morning for Tien Tsin. As the ship was expected to cross the line it flew a white flag.
While Gen. Wu was awaiting developments to influence his decision as to entering Peking his Chinese sympathizers were preparing to encourage him at Chang Tsin Tien, the scene of his first victory.

Wu Praises Aide
General Wu has sent a number of his officers into Peking to consult with the government authorities after his victory over Gen. Chang Tse Lin's army. Attributing much of his success to the initiative of Feng Yih Sheng, "the Christian General," who commanded the operations which resulted in the retreat of Chang's army.

U. S. AND GERMANY NEGOTIATE PLAN TO ADJUST WAR CLAIMS

Commission to Pass on Claims Growing Out of Property Seizure and Lusitania Sinking

TREATY CREATING COMMISSION TO BE SUBMITTED TO SENATE

Contemplate Body of One American, One German, One Neutral

WASHINGTON.—Negotiations are under way between the U. S. and Germany, it was said in official circles Friday, looking to the organization of a treaty providing for the creation of a commission which will pass on claims growing out of the seizure of property in the U. S. and Germany and upon claims filed with the U. S. government by American citizens as a result of the sinking of the Lusitania.

The commission probably will consist of three members—one American, one German and a neutral. Completion of a treaty providing for the commission will be followed by introduction of the document to the senate for approval, it was said, and by passage of enabling legislation. It was not expected that the treaty would be sent to the senate during the present session, however.

The amount of claims filed with the United States government for American property seized in Germany and growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania aggregate about $15,000,000, 600 but officials here have indicated that they expected this sum would be scaled to around $10,000,000.

The American government has in its possession some $350,000,000 worth of the property of German citizens seized during the war. Settlement of the American claims, it is expected will be provided for through the disposition of this property and its return to its owners.

German property now in the hands of the alien property custodian is in the form of 32,000 trusts, 30,000 of which belong to individuals with estates of $10,000 and under. The remainder comprises largely the property of corporations and companies aggregating $200,000,000 in value. It has been suggested that some plan be worked out whereby a part of the German holdings be impounded and made available for meeting claims of Americans against the German government.

COTTON VALUED AT MILLION DESTROYED BY SOUTHERN FLOOD

NEW ORLEANS, La.—The number of refugees and others needing assistance in the flooded areas of Louisiana and Mississippi increased Friday as the waters from the Mississippi river and swollen tributaries continued to spread over vast sections.
Destruction of 200,000 acres of growing cotton valued at over a million dollars has been caused by floodwaters from the Concordia parish crescent.

FRENCH ENVOY RETURNS AFTER PARIS CONFAB

Barthou Instructed to Stand Firm Against Treaty Encroachments; no Recognition of Russia, Says Paris

SEEK AGREEMENTS ON RUSS OFFER TO SATISFY BELGIAN DELEGATES

Only Political Problems Left for Solution at Genoa Conference

PARIS.—By The Associated Press.
—Vice Premier Barthou, head of the French delegation at the economic conference, left Paris Friday for Genoa after his conferences over the situation with Premier Poincare and the cabinet here. Premier Poincare urged M. Barthou to make an effort to reach an agreement with the allies on the memorandum to Russia that would satisfy the Belgians and not sacrifice the principle that the private property of foreigners in Russia must be respected.

No Recognition of Russia
The French government, it is said by an official of the foreign office, has entered into no agreement whatever concerning recognition of the soviet government.

The declaration of Dr. Walter Rathenau, the German foreign minister, to Premier Lloyd George that he saw no necessity for confirming the treaty of Versailles by accepting the French reservations to the non-aggression pact is interpreted in official circles here as disclosing the hope of the Germans that they may nullify the treaty by means of agreements at Genoa. M. Barthou, however, has issued instructions to resist any tendency to encroachment on the treaty, whether in the non-aggression pact or in other decisions reached at Genoa.

End Economic Discussion
GENOA.—The economic conference Friday expected to end its deliberations on financial, economic and transport questions. The substitute commission on economics was expected during the day to make its report to the full commission, which will probably approve it.

This will leave only political problems. The Russian question and the proposed non-aggression pact are taxing the ingenuity of Premier Lloyd George but there was optimism over their possible solution.

Meet Russian Delegates
One of the most interesting of Thursday's visits in conference circles, says Reuters' correspondent, was that of members of the Italo-Russian economic committee with Leonid Krasin and other Russian delegates, whose conversations were described as being of a promising and positive nature.

Practical agreements, says the correspondent, were almost arrived at on the basis of the principle of participation by the Russian in the various undertakings, including the extraction of oil and agricultural products. The share of the Russian state in profits amounting to 40 per cent, it was said, would be one-half, increasing proportionately in this event that profits should exceed 40 per cent.

REPORT ADVOCATES MERGER OF WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS

Proposals of Commission on Reorganization of Government Machinery Before Harding

WASHINGTON.—President Harding has under consideration Friday the proposals of the joint congressional commission on reorganization of government departments and bureaus preparatory to submission of the plans to the congressional committee which is to draft legislation to put them into effect.

The report was submitted to the president by Walter E. Brown of Ohio, chairman of the commission. Other members are expected to be held by the executive with members of the commission and other congressmen on the reorganization proposals which are understood to include consolidation of the war and navy departments and rearrangement of several bureaus.

CHARGES OF JURY TAMPERING MADE IN SMALL TRIAL

WATKESGAN, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Two jurors for the trial of Governor Lou Shimul, one of them already selected and sworn, the other tentatively accepted by both sides, were peremptorily challenged and removed Friday following charges by the defense that one of them had decided the case in jury room.

The state challenged the other when he was tendered by the defense to replace the first man.

The ill-feeling and grudge-bearers of something wrong with the jury which have been simmering under the surface for days, boiled over Friday morning in a spectacular display of verbal fireworks.

Caraway Demands that Attorney General Disclose Facts
as He Promised

SAY DAUGHERTY HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH MORSE PARDON

Letters from Taft and Wickersham are Introduced

WASHINGTON.—Discussion of Attorney General Daugherty's connection with the pardoning of Charles W. Morse, New York shipbuilder, from the Atlanta prison, was renewed again Friday in the senate with Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, challenging that Daugherty "disclose the facts and expose the people" to which reference was made in a statement Thursday by the attorney general.

Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, thereupon put into the record letters from Chief Justice Taft and former Attorney General Wickersham denying that Mr. Daugherty had influenced their action in the case. Both letters were written in November, 1915, at which time Mr. Daugherty was candidate for the senate in Ohio.

Chief Justice Taft who was president when Morse was pardoned, said in his letter that he "decided to say that in no way did you, (Daugherty), influence me in respect to the application for the pardon of Charles W.
Morse."

Mr. Wickersham wrote to Mr.
Daugherty that "all you did in that matter (the Morse pardon) was to bring the subject in a perfectly straight-forward way as an attorney should before the attorney general."

WIDOW GETS CHECK FROM PLOW COMPANY INDUSTRIAL POLICY

Mrs. Anthony Flootmeyer, widow of an employee of the La Crosse Plow company who died during the winter on Friday received from the company a handsome check—proceeds of a policy taken out for her husband by the company under a group insurance plan adopted in 1918. Mr. Flootmeyer entered the employ of the plow company July 1, 1907, and was occupied as a grinder of plow shares and disks until he was taken ill September 6, 1920. Thereafter he was unable to work but the company kept his insurance in force until his death, and recently concluded the settlement with the insurance company in behalf of the widow.

STATE BOARD ENDS HEARING WITH REQUEST

Asks Attorney McConnell to Devise Way to Obtain Sentiment of People on Location

MACWILLIE PRESENTS PLAN
OF SITE ON BADGER STREET

City Attorney Makes Statement on Attitude of the Common Council on Question

THE Railroad Commission of Wisconsin wants an expression from the citizens of La Crosse as to what site they prefer for a union depot, in the event the state board orders
a joint station for this city.

"The commission would like to ascertain public sentiment on the best site, and would suggest that some method be devised to obtain the opinion of the residents of the city," said Commissioner Trumbower at the close of the hearing Thursday on the petition of the Chamber of Commerce for a union depot here.

All Favor Union Depot
The request of Mr. Trumbower followed a statement by J. E. Mc-Connell, attorney for the petitioners in which he asserted that practically every civic and commercial body in the city had gone on record in favor of the union depot and that he was engaged by a committee which represented 20 organizations. He said also that the common council had once endorsed the union depot by an unanimous vote.

Mr. Trumbower asked Mr. McConnell if the committee had any preference as to site. The latter replied that public sentiment, so far as he had been able to ascertain, favored a canalway site, although the Bradish site, at Second and Vine and the Dockendorf site at Fourth and Badger also had many adherents.

Wants Council's Opinion
Mr. Trumbower then requested that steps be taken to ascertain which site the majority of citizens favored. In this connection he said it might be advisable for the members of the common council to express their opinion on a site for the union station, irrespective of their attitude as to the advisability of La Crosse having a union depot.

Near the close of the hearing City Attorney Oscar J. Swennes submitted a resolution adopted by the common council asking for the dismissal of the union depot proceeding by the Railroad Commission. He said it was not the idea of the common council to oppose a union depot. The purpose of the resolution, he declared, was to expedite a decision in the matter, which had been pending before the commission for over five years. He expressed the opinion that the resolution was roughly worded and did not, in fact, express the idea which the council had in mind.

Speech Not Evidence
Mr. McConnell submitted a published record of the council proceedings and asked Mr. Swennes if he would offer as evidence a speech by Mayor Bentley on the union depot question. Mr. Swennes said he would not, because the speech was not part of the official record of the council, despite the fact that it was published in the council proceedings.

Mr. McConnell said the union depot matter had been delayed during the war and afterwards because of the high prices of building material and hearings had been resumed after prices started declining.

Favors Dockendorf Site
D. W. MacWILLIE was the last witness called at the hearing. He submitted the Dockendorf site for a union station at Fourth and Badger streets and argued in support of the plan. The union depot on this site, he said, would be within four blocks of the heart of the city on two street car lines; all grade crossings would be eliminated and only two blocks of low priced property would have to be acquired, while the Northwestern road would have two blocks of valuable property for sale after the depot was built.

Freight Rates High
On cross examination Mr. MacWILLIE expressed the opinion that the excessive freight collected by the railroads from La Crosse manufacturers.

HARDING APPROVES DRIVE TO OBSERVE U. S. HOSPITAL DAY

May 12th Day Fixed to Acquaint Nation With Purpose and Scope of Hospital Service

DAY PICKED IS BIRTHDAY OF FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

Four Thousand Hospitals to Observe the Day

CHICAGO, Ill.—In providing for the care and treatment of former service men, the United States is establishing hospital facilities which later can be used for the benefit of the people of the country, according to a letter from President Harding, received by Matthews O. Foley, executive secretary of the national hospital day committee.

President Harding endorsed the observance of national hospital day, May 12, and recommended the movement sponsored by hospitals of the country to acquaint the people with the purpose and scope of hospital service. More than 4,000 hospitals are enlisted in this movement, and have planned programs for national hospital day, including "open house" for the community, graduation of nurses and exhibitions of X-ray, dietary, occupational therapy and other departments.

"I was pleased to learn that you are going to celebrate national hospital day again this year, on May 12, the anniversary of the birthday of Florence Nightingale," the president wrote.

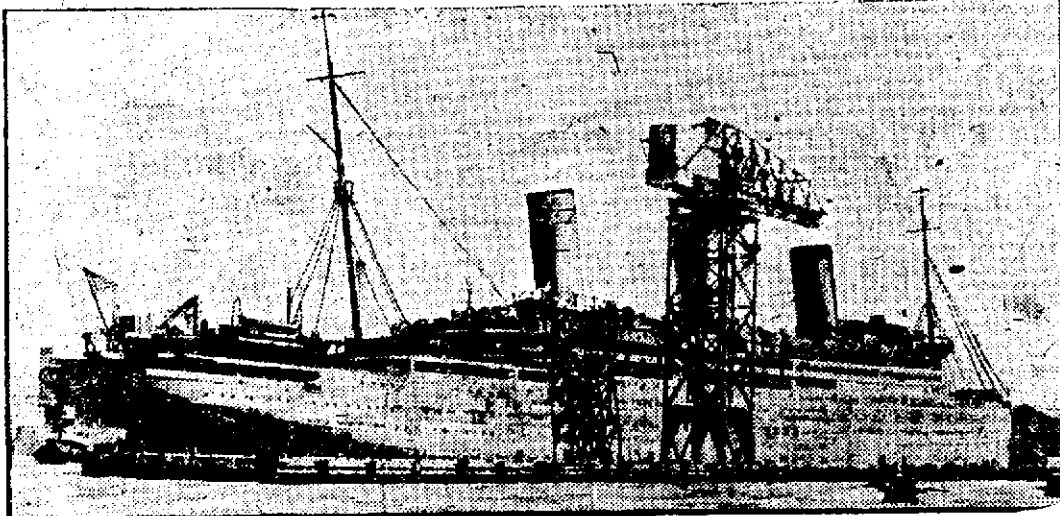

"I feel that it is particularly worth while to continue this observance at present, because of some things which have lately come to my attention with regard to hospital service, both in this country and abroad. American has led the world by a long way in the development and maintenance of modern hospitals, and in this regard our facilities are far superior to those of any other country. Yet, by reason of the extraordinary demands for care of the disabled men of the world war, we are a long way from adequate equipment."

"I have been told that in some of the European countries, where a very large hospital establishment was created to meet the requirements of the war, it has now proven almost impossible to obtain the necessary endowment funds and community interest in these institutions, to keep them doing the great humane work which should be carried on by them, whether in war or in peace time."

"For myself, I have felt that in establishing the great hospital facilities, which are needed for the soldiers, we will be providing ourselves with a facility whose usefulness will continue after the soldiers have been properly cared for and discharged. When that time comes I trust ways will be found to have these establishments utilized for the general interest of the community, through local associations similar to those that maintain so large a proportion of hospitals all over the country."

"One of the finest and most humane products of our civilization is the modern hospital, and every activity which aims to assure its advantages to an increasing number of people deserves all possible encouragement."

Last year, following the endorsement of President Harding, hospitals in every state and the District of Columbia, held a national hospital day program, in which they were joined by hundreds of Canadian hospitals. This year hospitals of England and Australia have indicated their interest and a number in each of these countries will observe the day.

EVERLASTING FIRE

Near Fort Norman, not far south of the Arctic Circle, fires have been burning continuously for more than one hundred and thirty years. Man did not find them, nor does man tend to their burning. They feed on immense seams of lignite that, like some coal seams, have lighted spontaneously. Alexander Mackenzie, the explorer, first reported them in 1789; and at the same time he noticed that the heat from the subterranean fires had burned to a brick-red the shales that outcrop along the banks of the river that he named after himself. In fact, the shale beds had been converted into massive red bricks. It is likely, then, that the fires had been burning many years before Mackenzie saw them. Virtually all of the explorers who have visited that part of the Mackenzie river basin have noticed the underground fires, which make themselves known by huge periodic bursts of smoke. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that the fires have been burning continuously since Mackenzie first saw them.

POOR OUTLOOK FOR COTTON

According to Colonel C. B. Lemar, of Augusta, Ga., the country faces a cotton famine next year unless some financial help is afforded the cotton growers. The cotton crop of 1921 was a failure because of the unfavorable climatic conditions and the ravages of the boll-weevil. Normally three-quarters of an acre of land will produce a bale of cotton, but last year the growers were lucky to get a bale from twelve acres. The colonel says the efforts to eradicate the boll-weevil have been unsuccessful and unless some scientific means of checking the ravages of this pest is found, normal production can only be maintained by increased planting and the farmers harvesting what the weevil does not destroy.

America—sometimes she knows how to fight; often she does not.

THE COURT'S OF LOVE

The Courts of Love were imitation law courts held in the Middle Ages. In the yard of some great castle a Court would be solemnly summoned with heralds and all the pageantry of law. Troubadours, great ladies, knights, and even bishops made the courts, before whom would be debated all manner of curious questions. "Would you rather that your love died or was unfaithful?" was one.

Actual offenders against the "Laws of Love" were haled before these Courts. And since all power was in the hands of the castle-owning classes, the "judges," though without any legal standing, were able to enforce their own rulings. Did a Court hold that Miss A had trifled with the affections of Master B., and that the suitable penalty would be for Miss A. to marry the first hunchback who called for the broken scraps of the castle gate, she did marry him! The Courts enjoyed a run of about 300 years, from the eleventh to the fourteenth century.

TREE MEMORIALS FOR RETIRED EMPLOYEES

The management of the Rock Island railroad has adopted the plan of planting trees to commemorate the services of such of their employees who deserve such recognition. These include a number of men who have been in the service of the company for a long term of years of which there are several including one with a very remarkable record. He is John F. Lacy, who was in active service for fifty-two years and during that time he has travelled a distance equal to ninety-five times around the world and had never an accident of any character. Trees have also been planted to memory of the men who entered the service of the country for the World War.

Shelley and Reform

A ROVING commentator in the "Nation" briefly reviews "A Philosophical View of Reform," written by Shelley more than a hundred years ago and just now published (Oxford) "in a handsome and fitting first edition."

Doubtless Shelley took his work seriously, for the article recalls his assertion that "poets are the acknowledged legislators of the world," and those who tremble beneath the sword of our modern radicalism may marvel that it was in no humorous mood that the poet gave voice to the modern-sounding declaration that he "would repudiate the national debt, abolish the standing army, do away with titles * * * and make justice cheap, certain and speedy."

But some of our modern radicals in politics may have difficulty in understanding this radical bard who declared that there must be "every consideration for those who must be put out of power," who preached "the inevitable connection between national prosperity and freedom," and who, of all things, asserted that "nothing is more idle than to reject a limited benefit because we cannot without great sacrifices obtain an unlimited one."

Evidently Shelley was a progressive. He was a Lenroot progressive, rather than a La Follette progressive. For Lenroot devotes himself constantly to securing "limited benefits," which Senator La Follette's uncompromising nature impels him to "reject because he cannot obtain an unlimited one." Lenroot accepts "the inevitable connection between national prosperity and freedom," which Senator La Follette "rejects." In a word Lenroot, like Shelley, is a disciple of what the poet refers to as "the counsels of reasonableness."

Home and Nation

PRESIDENT Harding thinks Mrs. Harding is the best waffle-maker on earth. The president is a great home man. He loves his own home. He loves his home town. Anything connected with home, he is "strong for." This is an element of true greatness.

Detroit recently held a "Better Homes Week." President Harding heard about it and wrote to William B. Wreford of the Detroit Board of Commerce:

It gives me great pleasure to record my endorsement and approval of the Better Homes Week which you are planning in Detroit. It may be true, but it is everlastingly true that the home is the corner-stone of our civilization. Better homes, more attractive homes, homes whose occupants will find true refreshment and real inspiration to increased efforts for education and culture—such homes are the ones which assure great stability to our institution, greatest security to our society. I cannot but feel that the effort you are making in Detroit is one which deserves a wider recognition, and would be glad if your example might presently be an inspiration to a nation-wide enterprise of the same kind.

We talk of "great national problems." But in the last analysis the home is the greatest national problem. When our young folks seem to go astray, the real trouble usually is in their homes. Almost any "national problem" ultimately resolves itself down into a straight proposition of how it will affect our homes.

Home is the fundamental thing. It is the core of life, the generator of inspiration, our comfort during depression, our haven during storms. Given a good home, it is a mighty poor stick of a man or woman who doesn't get along. Thus home-life is the barometer of national conditions—the straw that shows the way the wind is blowing. The things men do are of secondary importance. What counts most is in the home—and that is up to women, the real makers of America.

Westward Ho!

THE National City Bank of New York discovers that the manufacturing industry of the United States, which began along the Atlantic coast, is slowly moving toward the interior of the country where fuel and the bulk of manufacturing materials are produced. Each year the percentage of manufactured articles produced in the east grows smaller. The middle west is destined to be the great manufacturing center, as it now is the center of production of raw materials, especially food.

Most of the gain in interior manufacturing has occurred in the Mississippi Valley and the states around the Great Lakes. Wisconsin, for instance, increased its manufactures from roundly $327,000,000 in 1900, to $590,000,000 in 1910, and an estimated $2,000,000,000 in 1920. Ohio jumped from $749,000,000 in 1900 to upwards of $5,000,000,000 in 1920; Michigan manufacturers increased from $320,000,000 in 1900 to $3,500,000 in 1920. Proceeding to the Pacific, we find that in 20 years California's factory products advanced from $250,000,000 to $2,000,000,000, about keeping pace with Wisconsin, which occupies about one third the territory of California and has somewhat more than two thirds as great population.

Two things have caused this westward movement of manufacturing. Both have to do with economy. The first is the desire to save expensive freight hauls by turning raw materials into finished goods close to the localities where the raw materials are produced. The second cause of the shift of manufacturing is in land values. Manufacturing attracts congested population, which automatically increases the price of real estate. As the landlord's levy becomes heavier, it increases manufacturing costs, also the cost of living. And so manufacturing and labor are moving to the interior of the country to escape the landlords. Similarly, and a more important movement, the tendency for factories to get out of the cities and into villages or the open country, where land is cheap and rents low for employees. The evil, however, shadows them, for when they move their industry to virtually worthless land they automatically make it steadily increase in value in proportion to their labors. Rents and high land values probably are the hardest nuts to crack in our whole system of economics.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

School children of La Crosse have passed the one thousand dollar mark in the penny savings department, according to a report of Mrs. Robert B. Lowry, secretary. The penny savings accounts were started in La Crosse in September, 1909.

Bernard McFadden, editor of Physical Culture magazine and famous exponent of development of the body and mind by physical culture, will be in La Crosse May 7 to deliver a lecture at Germania hall to physicians and others interested in health work.

The unusual sight of a grocery store on stilts out in the street calmly doing business is attracting more than passing attention at Sixth and Winnebago streets. The store belongs to Geo. N. Bredesen and was moved to its present location by special permission of the council while a new store is being built on the lot vacated. The store is a land mark, having been built forty-six years ago on what was then the open prairie.

The final cruise of a river career, extending over a period of forty-four years, will be made tomorrow morning when the steamer Badger will carry the body of its owner and captain, H. B. Bredesen, to its last resting place at Brownsville, Minn. Captain Bredesen, perhaps the best known riverman on the upper Mississippi, died at his home, 320 North Twenty-first street, yesterday after several months' illness.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

There has been a great rise in the price of potatoes and local dealers believe there will be a potato famine. This morning the price was $1.05 per bushel. Many grocers are out of potatoes entirely.

A. L. Henshion, foreman of the La Crosse Crackery Company, will start a frog farm and expects to raise frogs for the market. He will lease three acres of marsh land in State Road Coulee and fit it up for business. A number of other local men are interested in the enterprise with him. The land will be inclosed in wire netting and a thousand frogs will be purchased for breeding purposes. Promoters believe this new industry will be a paying investment.

The breaking of the boom about twenty miles above West Newton caused five million feet of logs to float down stream and a large force of men was at work yesterday and today preventing them from coming into the Mississippi. The sudden rise of the Chippewa and other streams caused the trouble and it is thought many feet of logs will be lost.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The strike at the mills is over. Mill owners met last night and decided to open tomorrow, offering employment to all men who wished to work on the terms existing before the strike. It is probable most of the men will be at their places as the strike is getting wearisome to the entire community.

The Keeley Institute of Dwight, Illinois, is endeavoring to establish a branch institute in La Crosse and is making propositions to physicians of this city. So far they have not been able to get anyone to undertake the business.

Charles Gessell has something new and novel for this city in the shape of two electric fans. The fans are about three feet in diameter and run by a half horse power electric motor. They are placed near the ceiling and when in motion stir up a great breeze.

Otto Amerold of North La Crosse expects to leave soon for an extended trip to Norway, his native land. It is reported that a merry-go-round will soon be set up and ready for business at the corner of Kane and Gillette streets.

Delia

BY LAURA REID MONTGOMERY

"Yes," murmured Delia, a trace of complacency in her voice. "I've been bedridden for twelve years."

The guest, wife of the new doctor in the little village, looked puzzled. "But what is your trouble?" she asked, glancing around the spotless, sunny room with its flowering plants, each pot dressed in shiny white paper and tied with ribbon.

Delia essayed a feeble smile. "I'm a great sufferer," she acknowledged, "but I have learned to be patient. I bear my cross—and—" she looked up at the clock that had evidently been brought in from the parlor, a gay affair under a glass cover, and with an impatient gesture struck smartly the bell beside her. "Ruth does not mean to be unhelpful," she said with an air of patience, "but

A girl of thirty years of age hurried into the room, apprehension on her face. "Nothing wrong, Delia?" she cried.

"Of course it doesn't make any difference, but it's time for my warm milk," murmured Delia quite weakly. "Excitement makes me faint and I never like to dwell on my past—"

Ruth pinkened and glanced meaningfully at the guest. "Won't you come out with me while I get her milk?" she said. "She will perhaps nap a bit now."

Jane Morrow, a queer look in her observant eyes, followed the girl. Ruth was tall and very thin. She looked as though her youth had been such a depressed affair that it had been willingly relinquished and that she had slipped beyond the borders of girlhood almost thankful that so much of her life had been traversed. The room beyond was at the north of the house and was very barely furnished. None of the pleasant little luxuries so much in evidence in the invalid's room were visible here.

"Your sister fires very easily," remarked Mrs. Morrow.

Ruth, beating an egg in a glass of rich milk, nodded. "Yes, she likes to talk about her symptoms but if any one asks her questions she gets impatient. It is very hard on her. She has no one but me."

"Then," said Mrs. Morrow with a keen glance at the weary face, "you have no one but her. Why don't you pity yourself?"

Ruth looked amused. "I have nothing to be pitied for. I am very strong. It worries me to have to leave Delia while I go to teach, but the school house is very near, half a block, and still—her eyes filled with dread—"I am always afraid of fire. I'm sure I could get here in two minutes. I've timed myself, but—"

"No reason why she couldn't step out of bed, is there? Anything wrong with her feet? Lame?"

"No," said Ruth, rather surprised at the newcomer's bluntness, "but the exposure would probably kill her. School is only five days a week, though, so Saturday and Sunday, and I can look after her properly."

"Who takes care of her when you are out with the young people?" asked the doctor's wife.

"I wouldn't have her just for pleasure. You see, I know all her ways and no one else can please her. Why, if there is even a tiny speck of dust on her floor she detects it."

"I'd better have doctor step in and see her. I've no doubt he'll get her up in no time," began Mrs. Morrow briskly, but there was a call from the front room.

"I'll bid of that woman," commented the invalid, her black eyes snapping. "Now, can't I rest with such a fuss? I don't want her sent her husband. I don't want strange eyes on me."

Thoughtfully the doctor's wife continued her round of calls. She heard a good deal about Delia's wonderful patience and sweetness under her affliction, but of Ruth's tireless devotion no one had much to say; that is, no one saw anything unusual in it. He had bought and furnished a cottage for Ruth, who had planned to take the invalid with them after their marriage, and they had intended to sell the cottage belonging to the sisters so that Delia could have the money for herself, that she might never feel in the slightest degree dependent. When the invalid was informed of the plans, however, she grew greatly excited and went into hysterics. She refused absolutely to leave her home or to allow Ed Black to make one of the family. She seemed horrified at Ruth's selfishness in contemplating marriage. She said she could not last more than a year at most and surely Ruth could put off her marriage that long.

"And all that happened," reflected Mrs. Morrow, "thirteen years ago. Ruth was twenty-one years old then. Now she's thirty and old Delia is good for twenty years yet. She looks healthier than Ruth does."

The next day Ruth was obliged to take one of her pupils home. The child lived two miles out in the country and Ed Black, who oddly enough happened to drop in to speak to her, offered to drive them out. Ruth sent one of the girls with a message to Delia and, with an unwelcome feeling of relief from the duties of school, stepped into Ed's car and they sped down the snowy road.

The little girl, who had complained of some childish ailment, was left with her mother, who smiled rather mysteriously at Ed Black. Mrs. Morrow was there, and asked Ruth to stay, but she was anxious to get back to attend to Delia. As they left the yard Ed called the girl's attention to a flock of birds going south and in some manner his clutch on the wheel swerved and the car tipped over.

Ruth, shaken and frightened, was helped into the house and Mrs. Morrow, promising to look after Delia, went back with Ed.

The doctor's wife seemed strangely clumsy in her housework. The stove began to smoke and the tray that she prepared so eagerly did not at all please the invalid.

"I can't drink that tea. It boiled. I never had my steak fried, Ruth broils it," she complained.

OUT OUR WAY

"Oh, well, you oughtn't to eat much lying in bed. Ruth will be laid up for a few weeks, I guess," said Mrs. Morrow placidly. "Guess her ankle is twisted. Good thing it is the last day of school before Christmas. She won't lose any money. I'll send old Mrs. Barnes in to look after you."

"I won't have her," Delia fairly screamed. "She isn't neat and no one understands my ways as—"

"You might as well be patient, of course you can't live any one like Ruth. She is frightfully sorry, but the doctor won't let her step on her feet. If you could get about and wait on her she might be moved home."

Mrs. Morrow filled the stove and coals dropped and rolled over the clean rag carpet. Without noticing this she hurried out to the kitchen and left the back door open so that a dog ran in. "My, but it's a lovely day," she beamed, returning and picking up the untouched tray. "I'll run in this evening and put in some more coal for you." She lunged against the foot of the bed, disarranging the coverings, and went out, slamming doors behind her.

Delia lay staring after her. She was distinctly hungry. Ruth would have coaxed her into eating. Ruth would be gone for weeks. The dog scratched at the back door and managed to push it open and he rushed in bringing an icy blast of wind and considerable snow.

An hour later saw Delia with her bronchitis of years' standing quite forgotten. She was attending to the household affairs competently when Ed stepped in after supper.

"I don't know why you and Ruth don't get married," remarked the invalid. "I am feeling all right again, but," her black eyes snapped, "no thanks to that silly Mrs. Morrow, going out and not fastening the door behind her."

Ruth never knew of the kindly conspiracy that resulted in her release from a wholly imaginary duty, but Mrs. Morrow often fancied that she detected a grim amusement in Delia's eyes when they met hers.

"Yes," Delia would relate, "I bore my affliction and when it was lifted from me I arose and walked."

TWO MILWAUKEE MEN RELEASED FROM PEN

MADISON, Wis.—Edwin E. Kelley of Milwaukee had his seven year sentence for robbery commuted by Governor J. F. Byrne Friday, and was released from the state prison, John Markawski, also of Milwaukee, serving five years for assault with intent to rob was given a conditional pardon by the governor.

Governor Blaine said that Kelley had been led to rob because "he was lured with the idea of luxurious ease in the navy and the failure of the government to properly protect him against temptations led to his crime. Our government owes him a pardon."

CENTENNIAL OF PHOTOGRAPHY

The real discovery of photography took place just one hundred years ago and a monument which has been erected near Chalons gives the credit to Niepce. He made the first permanent photograph, although there were several other persons identified with the early history of the art. As early as 1802 the action of light on certain substances was discovered by Thomas Wedgewood. In 1822, however, Niepce made use of the sensitive bitumen of Judea and succeeded in "fixing" it so that the impression was made permanent. Wedgewood could not "fix" the pictures which he made and they did not last long.

TAKE ON MORE WORKERS

STEVENS POINT, Wis.—Because of the large number of freight cars in need of repairs, the Southern officials have increased the number of men employed in their shops here to a total of 310. New men numbering 125 are being taken on by the railroad.

The men who have been working five days a week will now labor six. This time it was said also applies to the company's shops in Fond du Lac and Shoreham.

COMIC OPERA AT A LOCAL THEATER FEATURE SATURDAY

Two performances of the comic opera, "The Pirates of Penzance," will be given by the High School Glee Clubs under the direction of Miss Toome on Saturday. The evening performance is for high school students and adults, the matinee for the children of the graded schools. The clubs number this year sixty members. With the exception of Dorothy Fritzler who takes the part of "Mabel" and who has already attracted some little attention as a gifted young singer the solo voices are new to High School opera performances. John Lord who has the role of "Frederic," Gage Staats as "Major General Stanley" and Dorothy Rothaupt as "Ruth" are all very promising.

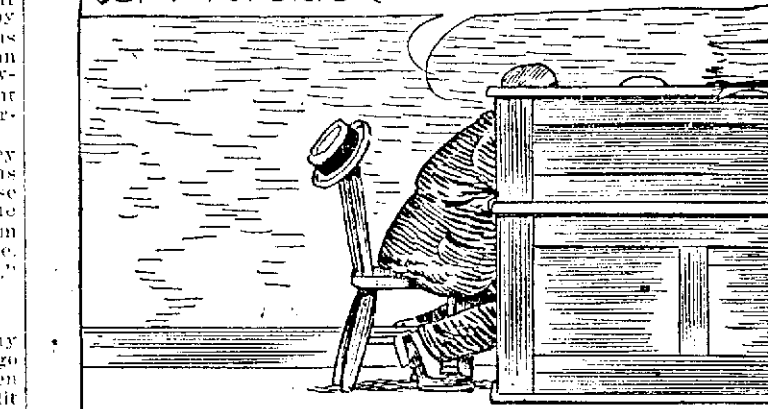

At the Wednesday assembly the clubs gave "samples" of the opera which showed splendidly to what the aptitudes of their auditors for more of the opera. A trio by Dorothy Rothaupt, John Lord and William Doherty was a typical piece of Gilbert and Sullivan humor and melody and was also a fair example of the musical capabilities of the organizations. A song by the chorus of "police-men" was very amusing and should be more so when costumes and settings are appropriate.

The presentation of the opera has been worked out in considerable detail, the direction of the music being always the work of Miss Toome. Miss Briggs has assisted with the dramatic coaching, Miss Macnair and her art department have cooperated by designing and constructing special scenery as well as program covers. The program design which is artistic and appropriate is the work of Kenneth Shephardson, the hand coloring on each of the work of the students of the department.

PACIFIC FUR SEAL HERD BEGINNING ITS ANNUAL TRIP NORTH

Only Two Herds of Fur Bearing Animals Believed to be in Existence

WOULD BE EXTINCT EXCEPT FOR CARE OF UNCLE SAM

Treaty Negotiated to Prohibit Foreigners from Taking Seals

PORT ANGELES, Wash.—The Pacific fur seal herd is on the move.

The annual migration to the Northwest has begun, and the vanguard will shortly appear off the coast of Washington and British Columbia, leading the way to the summer rendezvous on the Pribilof Islands in the middle of Bering Sea. All winter long the seals have been scattered through the South Pacific, but as spring approaches the mating instinct turns their heads to the North and they converge toward the California coast, and then follow their time worn groove along the Western coast of the United States, British Columbia and Alaska, the milestones of their route being the deep sea fishing banks where succulent salmon, halibut and other fish keep them sleek and fat.

Few, if any, other animals are so carefully pampered and nursed by Uncle Sam, except for such fostering the fur seal probably now would be an extinct animal. With the exception of a small colony that summers on the Commander Islands, off the coast of Kamchatka, Siberia, the herd which propagates on the Pribilofs is the only fur seal herd known to be in existence.

When Alaska was purchased from Russia the seals on the Pribilof Islands numbered, according to various official estimates, from two to five million animals, but due to ruthless operations by sealers of many nations the herds were decimated annually. The United States government, year after year, endeavored to negotiate treaties for the protection of the seals. In 1891 a measure of success was obtained in a treaty with Great Britain which practically eliminated Canadian sealers.

The massacre of the herds continued, however. Numerous schooners, flying the Japanese flag, annually reaped a rich harvest, and the Japanese government steadfastly refused to interfere with the enterprise. Finally in 1911, when the herds by unrestrained pelagic sealing had been reduced to approximately 250,000 animals the efforts of the United States were rewarded and a treaty among four nations—Russia, Great Britain, Japan and the United States—was negotiated to continue in force for fifteen years.

The agreement prohibited any of the nationals of the signatory powers from taking seals at any time anywhere, with the provision, however, that agent of the United States might take a few thousand skins each year from bachelor males summering on the Pribilofs. This does not interfere with the propagation of the herds. By the terms of the treaty the United States not only amply rewarded the nations for any loss sustained by their nationals, but agreed to give annually fifteen percent of the proceeds of the skins taken from the few animals killed.

During the months of April, May and June this year, the cutter Snohomish will guard the herd along the route between the Columbia River and the Alaskan boundary, and the cutter Unalga from the latter point to the entrance to Bering Sea. After the middle of June, the herd with the exception of a few stragglers will have passed into Bering Sea and three other coast guard vessels will maintain a rigid guard there.

STARTED SOMETHING

Lorillard Spencer, one of the trustees of the veterans' relief fund, said at a New York reception:

"When will the profiteers learn that they've got to let prices come down? Before resorting to force we ought to give these fellows a forcible hint or two."

"An ordinary hint would have no effect on a profiteer. It would have to be a remarkable hint, like Smythe's."

"Smythe and his wife had callers one evening who stayed too late, far too late. Smythe in the end yawned and said to his wife:

"My wife, hadn't we better get up to bed? It's after 1, you know, and our guests may want to be going."

FINE FINGERPRINT WORK

Detectives searching for evidence of a crime often find only fragments of fingerprints which are too small to be identified with any of those in the possession of the police. In cases such as this criminologists turn to a new method called "poroscopy"; in other words, they study the arrangement of the pores of the skin. Like the patterns on the fingers, the tiny pores in the skin never change, and when photographed under the microscope they are seen to be varied in size and form.

In every millimetre of fingerprint (and there are 25 millimetres in an inch) there are from 9 to 13 of these pores, so that the smallest fragment of a fingerprint can be used for identification.

The work is done by means of photographs enlarged about twenty times, and there are already many cases on record of men being convicted solely on the evidence of these photos. It is impossible for anyone to hide his identity by burning, rubbing or using chemicals.

On moving day, if the landlord doesn't move to reduce the rent, it's the tenant's move.

WETS PLAN BIG DRIVE TO OBTAIN WINE AND BEER

Assault in Force on Prohibition Law to be Made this Fall

WILL DEMAND LOOSER APPLICATION OF LAW

Predict 100 Members of House Will Favor Relaxation

BY HARRY B. HUNT
WASHINGTON — An assault in force is to be made on the present prohibition enforcement law at the congressional primaries and election this year.

Wet forces are organizing for one

ALL WETS!
Varied and varied are the names of many of the wet organizations that have joined the drive for relaxation of the Volstead law. Typical of the nomenclature chosen for these groups are these:
Order of Camels.
Order of the Sphinx.
Puppets League.
Good Fellows of America.
American Sporting League.
Light Wine and Beer League.
League of Rights.
Free People's League.
American Liberties League.
The 1776 Society.
The Sanity League.
The Veterans of Liberty.

last determined effort to rescue beer and light wines.

The fight will be directed not against the constitutional amendment but against the Volstead law, which defines what constitutes "intoxicating beverages."

Already the Anti-Saloon League has a list of 30 organizations formed around for the purpose of assisting the beer and light wines campaign. Some of these are local in nature, others are organized on a state basis. Some half-dozen of them aspire to nation-wide scope.

Drive on Congress

The plan of attack is to nominate at the primaries and put across at the November election the greatest possible number of congressional candidates favorable to relaxing the restrictions of the enforcement law.

A four per cent beer, instead of the one-half of one per cent article now legal, is desired, and light unfortified wines.

Of the three dozen organizations engaged in the campaign for the wets, the strongest and most widely organized is held to be the National Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

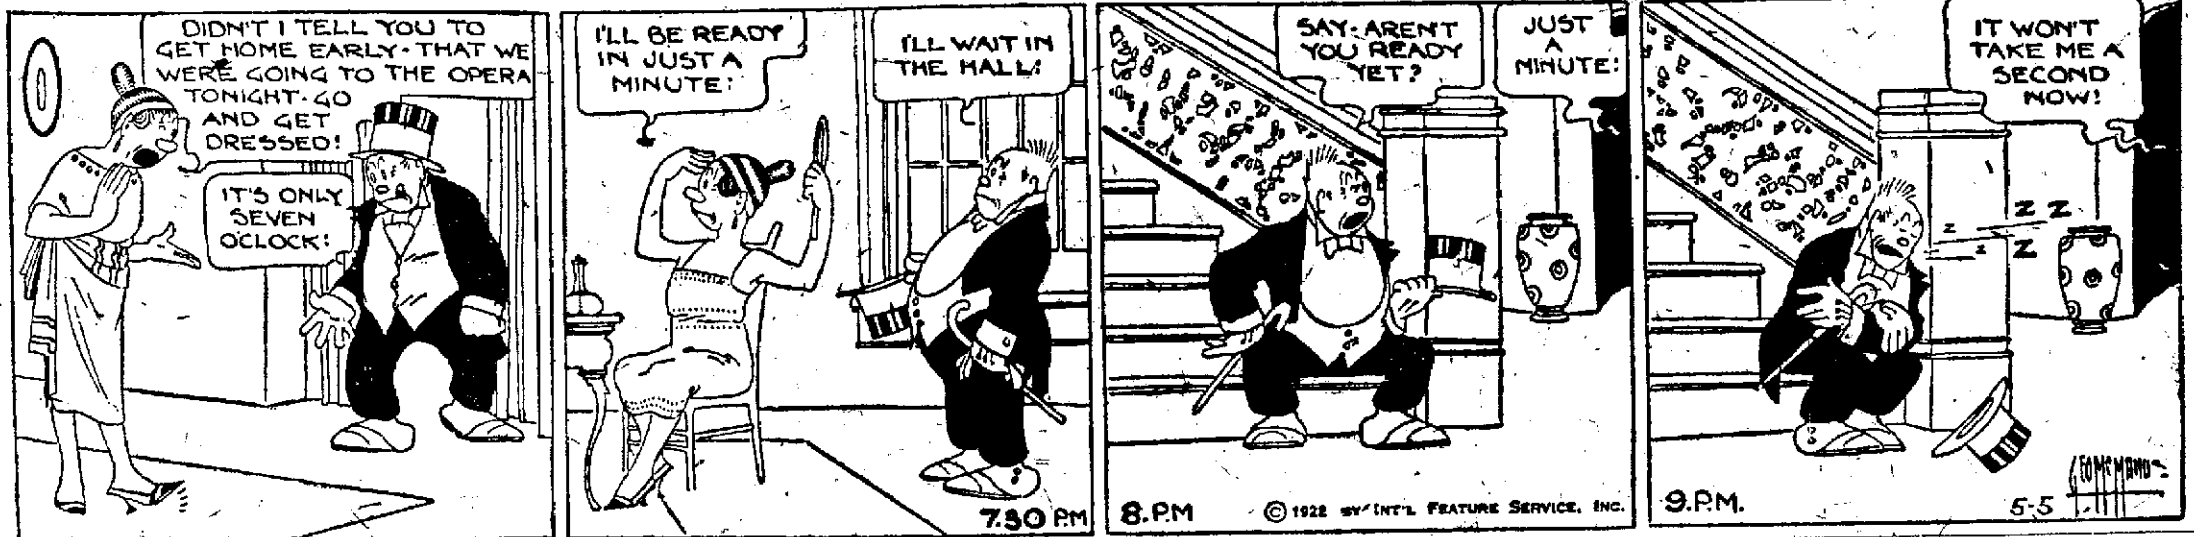

The headquarters of this organization occupies the whole floor of a Washington office building.

Its head is William H. Stargen, a former naval officer, now president of the Baltimore Steamship Co., of Baltimore. Its membership list includes a long array of well-known names, and these are effectively used in campaigning for new members.

Work in Full Swing

G. C. Hinkley, secretary of this

BRINGING UP FATHER

organization, in charge of the Washington activities, says the work of extending state and local branches is now in full swing and is being pushed in order to be in position for the most effective work in the congressional campaign.

"The sale of light wines and beer can be permitted within the terms of the eighteenth amendment," said Hinkley. "All that is necessary is to have congress redefine an intoxicating beverage."

It is of first importance that we grow to the point where we can say to congress and to politicians generally that we represent a very large body of American voters. It now seems likely that we will reach the million mark within the next few months. When that number of members has been attained, we can repeal the Volstead law.

"We have recently added a department the function of which is to sound out and record the views of men in public life—including senators, congressmen and all candidates for office—on the subject of prohibition. This information will be published broadcast, so that no voter need be in doubt as to the prohibition views of those who seek his support."

"We have now gotten to the point where many senators and congressmen are in favor of modification of the Volstead law."

100 Moist Members

Hinkley estimates that the campaign now under way will add 100 members to congress favorable to relaxing the beer and wine prohibition. That number, he says, in addition to present members favorable to the change would put it across.

While the campaign is to be stressed this year as a fight for amendment of the Volstead law, that is only the first step in the organization's full program.

"Our original object, which must not be lost sight of," says Hinkley, "is the removal of the eighteenth amendment from the constitution."

Finances for the wet fight, the organization heads insist, are derived from membership fees and "contributions." The total to be expended, through national, state and local units, will run into the millions.

45,000 STITCHES IN YOUR SUIT

Have you ever given a thought to the subject of the number of stitches in a suit of masculine clothes? To begin with, there are close upon 8000 stitches in an average size pair of trousers. Of this number about 5750 are machine-made, the balance being made by hand, chiefly in the form of finishing-work to the waist, pockets and turn-ups.

In the vest there are roughly 5500 stitches. The percentage of hand-work is higher in this garment than in the trousers, the lining usually being put in entirely by hand-made stitches, as well as the finishing work. The figures are 3400 machine and 2100 hand stitches.

But it is in the coat that the big totals come. In this garment there are on the average over 30,000 stitches. The pockets and the large number of seams account for much machine-work, while the lining and finishing entail many hand-worked stitches. Of the latter there are 8,000 in the average coat.

There are, also, the tacking and fitting stitches, so altogether there are something like 45,000 stitches in your suit.

CHICAGO MAYOR IN NEW YORK TO STUDY SUBWAY PROBLEMS

Runs Into Demonstration of Brooklyn Residents Who Demand Subway

NEW YORK.—Mayor W. Thompson of Chicago who came here to study New York's subway and the five-cent fare still in vogue in this city, ran right into the center of the subway problem Friday morning when he sat with Mayor Hylan at a meeting of the board of estimation.

About 200 persons from East New York, a part of Brooklyn, were at the meeting to impress upon the board that they wanted a subway, not an elevated, built for them, and they impressed it with bells, horns, and just plain applause when Mayor Hylan stated the board would try to give the people what they want.

"Your noise," broke in Mayor Thompson as the applause subsided, "reminds me of Chicago on election day."

Whereupon there was more cheering, another display of flags and Mayor Hylan beamed and shook his guest's hand.

Mayor Thompson with a retinue of some thirty commissioners, assistant commissioners and various officials from Chicago arrived at city hall half an hour late. The street sweepers' band was out to meet them and as the party walked up the steps to the hall the band played "Hail to the Chief."

BURIAL SERVICES FOR CROKER HELD AT IRISH HOME

DUBLIN.—By The Associated Press. Richard Croker, former Tammany chieftain, who died last Saturday, was buried Friday morning in the mausoleum on the grounds of Glencairn castle, the beautiful estate on his native soil of Ireland, where he had spent his declining years. Mass was previously celebrated in the Oratory of the castle by Father Kelly, the parish priest, absolution being given by Bishop Miller, who officiated.

Although it had been announced the funeral would be private there was nevertheless a considerable assemblage present, including many friends made by the late Tammany leader in his long association with the turf.

The pall-bearers in the procession accompanying the cortege to the vault included Arthur Griffith, president of the dail eireann and Alderman McDonagh, one of the leading members of De Valera's party.

Storm Gates of City

Thursday night crowds of soldiers from Chang's defeated army gathered outside the walls of Peking clamoring for admittance. At the southwest gates where the without enters the city they used a locomotive in an effort to ram down the gate, but failed. City guards were sent out to disarm the stragglers.

Two thousand of Chang Tso Lin's soldiers permanently kept in Peking were disarmed, under orders from Wu Pei Fu. This is regarded as eliminating Chang's authority in the capital.

Outside the walls some of Chang's soldiers refused to surrender and were fired upon. Sixteen hundred of these troops were captured in one place.

During the hearing railroad attorneys and engineers expressed the opinion that the sum of $200,000 allowed in the Woods computation for the building of the union station was not sufficient—that a structure adequate for the needs of La Crosse would cost much more than this sum.

Promise Early Decision

At the close of the hearing an announcement was made that the railroads were preparing a brief on the operation of union depots in various cities in the country containing statistical information and that when this was filed their case would be closed.

Mr. Trumbower promised an early decision by the commission on the union depot petition.

The court, in its opinion, held that although the Wisconsin supreme court had not passed on the question, the supreme courts of numerous other states have held that jitneys operating on the streets of a city for hire may be burdened with such reasonable restrictions as the city council sees fit to impose.

OIL INTERESTS BACK BAKU DRIVE, REDS SAY

WRANGEL PLANS NEW OFFENSIVE ON RED CITADEL

Capital of New Republic Called "Wickedest City in the World"

LONDON.—With the wickedest city in the world as his objective, General Baron Peter Wrangel will muster his 30,000 shattered troops and enter upon a new military offensive, bolshevist officials here say they are informed.

Wrangel, bolshevists, say, will march on Baku, capital of the new republic of Azerbaijan, most prolific single oil-producing center in the world.

Baku, before the war characterized by the gambling, vice and general looseness of an oil boom town made doubly worse by its Oriental atmosphere, recently has become a haven of war refugees of all races and has lost every semblance of law and restraint.

But that doesn't affect the value of Baku's oil. The wells of the district are located very near the city. Oil is piped to the city and there prepared for export.

The total output of Baku's wells sometimes amounts to 242,231,000 gallons a year.

Has Foreign Backing

To capture this prize, bolshevists say, some French and American oil interests will finance Wrangel's campaign.

If Wrangel succeeds, he will set up a government with himself at the head and turn oil concessions over to these Franco-American interests.

Wrangel, former anti-bolshevist leader in the Crimea, is one of the most picturesque characters post-war days brought forth.

As a youth he attended college as a student of mining engineering. He became a Russian army lieutenant in 1902.

Decoration in War

In the Russo-Japanese war he was twice promoted for bravery. As a captain of cavalry in the world war he distinguished himself on the Gallipoli front. He became a major general.

Wrangel turned his sword against the soviet when it came into power and became a trusted aid of Denikin, anti-bolshevist chief.

When Denikin fell, Wrangel retired to the Crimea with Denikin's southern army and established himself as dictator of southern Russia. He secured the recognition of France.

In 1735 it was restored to Persia, but in 1806 again went back into Russian hands. On May 28, 1918, Azerbaijan was declared an independent soviet republic with Baku as capital.

Baroness Wrangel, daughter of the czar's chamberlain and formerly lady-in-waiting to the czarina, has accompanied her husband through all his victories and defeats.

Baku, reported objective of Wrangel, is a seaport of 300,000 population on the Caspian sea. It was in Persian hands until 1723 when it was seized by Russia.

In 1735 it was restored to Persia, but in 1806 again went back into Russian hands. On May 28, 1918, Azerbaijan was declared an independent soviet republic with Baku as capital.

Wrangel turned his sword against the soviet when it came into power and became a trusted aid of Denikin, anti-bolshevist chief.

When Denikin fell, Wrangel retired to the Crimea with Denikin's southern army and established himself as dictator of southern Russia. He secured the recognition of France.

BECK POINTS OUT GRAVITY OF COAL STRIKE SITUATION

Viroqua Man Named on Special Committee to Investigate Conditions

DECLARES BIG COAL OPERATORS ARE ENCOURAGING THE STRIKE

Seek to Break up Unions and Keep up High Prices

MADISON, Wis.—"It is time that the American public awoke to the coal situation. The big operators of coal mines are encouraging this strike in order to keep the prices of coal up and to break up union labor. The coal operators are not attempting to break up union labor in the interest of lower coal prices but in the interest of larger profits for themselves."

This is the statement of Congressman J. D. Beck, Viroqua, who was in Madison Friday on business. Mr. Beck is a member of the committee created by the house for the special purpose of investigating the coal situation.

"Some startling conditions have been found. For example, we found that Mr. Ogle of Indiana, was the owner of a company for mining the coal and to bring the coal to the mouth of the mine," said Mr. Beck. "As soon as Mr. Ogle has the coal at the mouth of the mine and has made a profit upon that operation, he becomes another corporation by law. This is the selling corporation and he again expects a second toll from the people, and it has been found that these mine operators have formed themselves into as many as twelve different companies for selling the same coal. Upon each operation they exact a toll from the buying public."

"The public should be made cognizant of this fact. I want you to understand that a carload stands at the mine and is sold over and over again as many as twelve different times without the car being disturbed and every time a profit is made and piled up which the American public has to pay."

"There must be legislation against that inquiry. Every man will admit that the miners should be paid good wages and the coal operators should have a reasonable profit. By reasonable profit we do not mean a combined and exorbitant profit and there is no excuse why soft coal should not be selling to farmers of Wisconsin for approximately $3.00 a ton. They now pay as high as $14. The difference between these sums represents the toll which the coal operators are making by the operation of selling and reselling to each other."

"Two years has demonstrated to the people of Wisconsin that I was justified in making my fight against the iniquitous Esch-Cummings law. I professed that it would paralyze industry of this state. I professed that such high freight rates would produce lower farm prices and make it impossible to move farm products to market at a profit. It has done so. It has deflated farm values in this country in excess of ten billions of dollars. The way the federal reserve has been administering the law, it has taken an additional ten billion dollars out of the people. It is time that the people of this country took politics seriously. It means their livelihood if they are to be choked by monopolies. The only way to strangle this hold is by progressives everywhere who will stand by the common people and break the shackles of corporate rule."

WASHINGTON—Attorney General Daugherty was asked if men had been assigned to shadow Representatives Johnson and Woodruff after their speeches criticizing the department of justice.

Public Debate

WHAT ABOUT ARMENIA?

Armenia is like the victim who fell among robbers in the parable of the Good Samaritan. She has fallen among robbers who have beat her, stripped her and left her half dead. Along the road comes the nations with their councils and conclaves and so concerned are they with their own policies so barren of altruism, that they pass by on the other side allowing this great Christian people to lie writhing in blood and perishing with hunger. Others come and say: "As long as the world powers do not interfere to correct conditions in the Near East, not one cent shall we give." So they pass by. The Good Samaritan in Jesus' wonderful story might have said: "Well, as long as robbers infest this road, why should I help this dying man. The Roman government should properly police this road. I will do nothing for this man for in five minutes after he leaves the inn-keeper's care he may be molested again, perhaps killed and all my work will be in vain." But the Samaritan knew, and Jesus knew even better that the Romans were negligent, that the road should be properly policed, and knowing all this, he still knew the dying man along the way deserved every help that could be given him. He who argues against giving help to the Armenians until the powers shall crush the Turks, argues for annihilation of the nation and is anti-Christian in reasoning and action. We hear this said: "I am interested in the needy of my home city." Again the Samaritan might have said: "I have sick in Sotian and Sychar and other cities of Samaria, why should I help this man who is a Jewish enemy." But the Samaritan believed with a fine example to us all, that men are brothers, and wherever there is a desperate need, there help should be given. There is not an argument that can be given, worthy of a Christian, to show why help should not be given these starving people in this tragic hour.

UNIVERSITIES OF BRITAIN ASK AID FOR FIRST TIME

Oxford and Cambridge in First Appeal for Public Assistance

LONDON.—Oxford and Cambridge Universities, for the first time in their long histories, are unable to support themselves, and have called upon the public for assistance.

This was disclosed in a report issued by the Royal Commission appointed under the chairmanship of ex-premier Asquith to investigate the financial condition of the two institutions, which two years ago was admitted to be unsatisfactory that the government granted each of them an emergency subsidy of 30,000 pounds annually, thus saving both colleges from collapse.

Including these subsidies, Oxford had an income of 824,710 pounds in 1920, while that of Cambridge totaled 719,554 pounds. The commission's report recommends increasing the annual grants to 100,000 pounds each, with additional provisions for extending educational facilities for women and paying pension arrears.

The commission stresses the point that today the universities have largely returned to their original function of ministering to the non-wealthy student, and have, in fact, become "student democracies."

In addition to recommending ample facilities for the education of women, the report pleads for more state scholarships, cheaper living costs and better pay, with pension prospects, for professors.

Although the report regrets "the comparative neglect of living languages" at both universities, it notes that there is an increasing tendency on the part of business men to look to universities for trained men as future assistants and partners. It adds that "business salaries now offered to first-class science men would make it impossible to keep enough of the best men to do the teaching at Oxford and Cambridge were it not for their devotion to academic research and teaching and their attachment to the university."

As regards the cost of living for undergraduates, the report finds that it is too high. In 1919-20 the average total year's cost for an arts student, including food but not clothes, washing, books, stationery and personal expenses, was 156 pounds for Oxford and 145 pounds for Cambridge. The cheapest college during that year was Oxford, 114 pounds; Cambridge, 123 pounds. The dearest was at Oxford, 202 pounds; Cambridge 172 pounds.

Marquis Curzon is chancellor of Oxford, where the number of resident undergraduate students according to the latest statistics is 4,651, while at Cambridge, where Sir Arthur Balfour is chancellor, there are 5,733 students.

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulified cocoon oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It will make abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rises out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulified cocoon oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulified.

OBERRAMMERGAU TO PROTECT VISITORS FROM PROFITEERS

Villagers Busy Winding up Arrangements for Presentation of Passion Play

OBERRAMMERGAU, Bavaria.—The villagers here are feverishly finishing preparations for the first performance of the Passion Play, which occurs May 14, after a full dress rehearsal May 9 before a number of invited guests. The village elders say they have made arrangements to house and feed the foreign and native guests and to protect them from profiteers or any form of extortion.

Only about 7,000 persons can be housed in the village and the vicinity. Consequently the Passion Play committee has advised that visitors should remain only one or two days and then give way for others. Applications indicate the visitors will tax accommodations severely but it is said officially "all will be taken care of."

All sleeping and eating accommodations are under direct control of the village administration and steps have been taken to severely punish those who violate the regulation and the schedules of prices which will be available to all visitors.

Approximately 1,000 persons will participate in the play which continues from morning until evening. There are 500 regular players, 124 of them being soloists or with speaking parts.

Many women and children participate. The theater has a seating capacity of 4,500, the exact number for which overnight accommodations have been provided in the village.

Woman's Curiosity
The worst of women is that they are always wanting to see what will happen if they do certain things. They make a man angry just to see what he looks like when he is angry; and they make a man miserable just to see what he looks like when he is miserable; and they never realize how much gratuitous suffering all this entails upon the man.—From "Concerning Isabel Carnaby," by Mrs. Fowler.

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

LODGE TO FACE BIGGEST FIGHT OF LIFE FOR PLACE

Formidable Democrats and Possible Republican Opposition Looms

BOSTON.—The biggest political fight in the United States is brewing in Massachusetts. It has national significance, because it is a fight to unseat Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. "Beat Lodge" is the slogan. "Who can do it?" is the question. Two millionaire lawyers are chief figures in the battle. One, Colonel William A. Gaston, has announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination. The other, Sherman L. Whipple, will probably oppose Gaston. Both are fighting men. But Whipple seems to be generally regarded as the most formidable democrat likely to beat Lodge. Another complication is that former Governor Samuel W. McCall may give Lodge a battle for the republican nomination. If Whipple runs and McCall runs there will be two spectacular struggles at the September primaries as a preliminary to the grand knock-down battle in November.

36 Years in Congress

Lodge is 72 and has spent half his life in Congress, six years in the house and 30 years in the senate. Whipple is 60, and never held office. Gaston is 65 and has made three unsuccessful tries for governor.

Wilson democrats are in open revolt against Gaston's candidacy, for Gaston was as much a foe of the League of Nations as Lodge. And Whipple, a strong League of Nations man, regards Gaston as being tarred with the same "big business" stick as Lodge.

Whipple, though not yet an avowed candidate, will fight Lodge on the ground that he has neglected labor and the masses generally in favor of special interests, and on his vote for Newberry and against such things as women's suffrage and the soldier bonus.

FITZPATRICK HITS PLAN FOR U. S. AID TO STATE SCHOOLS

Move is Attempt to "Federalize Education" Declares Badger Educator

MADISON, Wis.—The proposed extension of federal financial aid to education and the creation of a Secretary of Education in the President's cabinet as called for in the Sterling-Townsend bill now before Congress, were criticized Friday by Dr. F. A. Fitzpatrick, secretary of the Wisconsin board of education, in an article in the Educational Review.

The Wisconsin educator questioned whether the attempt to federalize education was not "a confession of the bankruptcy of the educational leadership of the states and of the local communities." He expressed the opinion that the extension of financial aid by the national government would mean that federal standards and policies would have to be accepted by the states, a condition he disapproves.

What is needed, according to Dr. Fitzpatrick, is for individual states to take advantage of the educational leadership which is available to them. This can be accomplished, he believes, by removing policies from school administration which now "is in the hands of politically elected state superintendents in thirty-eight states."

"Instead of organizing this tremendous propaganda and great energy to secure more educational machinery and machinery more remote from the 'sins' of the educational problem," the writer asked why effort should not be directed to existing machinery, while as for money, no constitutional or other local limitation upon the amount or method of state taxation for education exists to hamper any state willing to face its educational problem."

Dr. Fitzpatrick said that he saw no reason for creating a cabinet position to be filled by a Secretary of Education, stating that if the advocates of federalizing education are sincere in their desire "to maintain the integrity of the state educational systems and keep them under control, the ideal arrangement of a federal agency would be a federal board of education in the same legal position as the United States Commerce Commission." Creation of a cabinet position would be seeking a panacea, likely to result in disappointment, he said.

WASHINGTON.—An additional allotment of $216,000 to the board of managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers for the construction of quarters for medical officers and nurses at the hospitals now being built for the care of disabled veterans on the grounds of the soldiers' homes at Milwaukee, Wis., Dayton, Ohio, and Marion, Indiana, was announced by Secretary Mellon. These hospitals are now being constructed out of funds allotted by the treasury last fall, are nearing completion, and the new allotment will provide for five sets of officers' quarters, quarters and additional nurses quarters at Milwaukee.

SCHEIBEL REPORTS BETTER OBSERVANCE OF THE GAME RULES

Decrease in Number of Violations Laid to Education of the Boys

MADISON, Wis.—That there is a growing decrease in the number of violations of the conservation laws of the state is the belief of Secretary R. B. Scheibel of the state conservation commission. Mr. Scheibel attributes this to the various movements which educate the boys to the value of conservation laws.

"I believe there is a decrease in the number of violations of our conservation laws," said Mr. Scheibel. "The people and especially the boys are being educated to the fact that we are not trying to prohibit but rather to preserve the fish and game so that there will always be hunting and fishing in Wisconsin."

Mr. Scheibel expects that close to 40,000 non-resident fishing licenses will be sold this year. These licenses cost $2 for all fish but trout and $3 including the trout fishing. He reports that 25,000 of these licenses were sold at the Chicago Union Depot last year where a special window is employed to handle the sale of the licenses for the tourists that are leaving for the resorts and lakes of northern Wisconsin.

SEND CONTRIBUTIONS TO NEAR EAST RELIEF FUND OR TELEPHONE WORKERS

If you have not contributed to the Near East Relief fund, and have no checkbook, campaign workers will call on you and obtain your contribution, if you will telephone 1351-R. Mrs. J. R. Kerr announced today. Following is an appeal for the suffering people who will benefit from this fund:

Doubtless nearly every one read the editorial from the "Literary Digest," regarding the Near East Relief, in Wednesday's Tribune. At the end of that appeal is written "Send your check at once to Mr. Whipple, treasurer, at the National Bank." There will perhaps be a fine response with checks today and tomorrow.

But there are many, very many, who are willing and glad to do their bit, who want to give a small offering, who have not check books. In four days of Near East work I have many checks, but I also have a substantial number of dollars, collected by halves, quarters and even dimes. So many girls on small salaries have given me what they could spare. None of them could have written me a "check," but the aggregate will provide many a cup of cocoa and slices of bread over there. The time is short for this precious work (only five days). La Crosse is a large town to cover. It is impossible to see many who likely say to themselves "I would like to give a little something." So this is an appeal to any one who has been overlooked or who has a small amount to spare.

Will you please call 1351-R Saturday morning and give your name

REPORT DECLINE IN BADGER DEATH RATE

Mortality rate at Lowest Point Except for First Quarter of 1921

MADISON, Wis.—The death rate in Wisconsin during the first quarter of 1922 was the lowest in Wisconsin of any time since the uniform health law was enacted in 1907, except for the first quarter of 1921, the state board of health reported today.

The rate was 11.18 per thousand people in the state, with total death for the three months of 7,628, an especially favorable report, according to the board. The decline in the death rate was said to have been particularly marked among children from one to four years of age. Among elderly persons the rate was reported to have increased slightly.

UNDER THE CAPITOL DOME

Odds and Ends of State Affairs by William J. Anderson

MADISON, Wis.—There is no longer any camouflage used in discussing politics in Wisconsin. The conservative element of the Republicans (there are not enough Democrats to count in the state) are out openly to defeat what they conceive to be the bolshevistic tendencies of both the Governor and the senior senator. The convention of conservatives and progressives, to be held in Milwaukee early in June promises to be the biggest political gathering ever held in the state. Both the Governor and the senior senator have offended many of the progressives by their radicalism, and Senator La Follette will find himself opposed this year by thousands who formerly marched under his banner. The ex-senator's bitter attack upon the President and Secretary Hughes and the work of the great Washington peace conference—the international gathering now considered one of the most important in history in its work to discourage wars—has opened the eyes of many of the senator's former followers to his really radical attitude. In the case of the Governor there are many scores against him, and he has a fight on his hands that will demand the best fighting qualities he can muster.

It has often been said in Wisconsin that the regulation of utilities has had a tendency to discourage the development of these enterprises. This statement has had many denials in the history of the growth of privately owned utilities in the state, but one of the strongest refutations is found in the development of the Madison Gas and Electric Co. This enterprise is not only one of the most efficiently managed utilities, but it has found state regulation a help rather than a hindrance. It has had a steady growth to meet the needs of the city, and the company this week announced that it is about to expend a half a million dollars in enlarging its plant and putting up an office building. An interesting feature of this proposed enlargement is that, while the company has been for several years receiving its power from the big hydro electric plants at Kilbourne and Sauk City, it proposed enlargements chiefly of its steam power plant. It is said that instead of taking its power from the hydro-electric plants that it will when its big boiler plant is completed, sell power to the hydro electric plants, which have more demand for current than they can supply. There would seem to be in this situation little hope for any material reduction in the cost of electricity through the development of water power. The fact is that the demand for electric power is increasing many times as rapidly as the development of water power production.

The compensation board of the insurance department is having some trouble to curb the ambitions of some of the liability insurance companies. Because of this, this week the board issued an order to the effect that: No automobile liability policy may be endorsed extending coverage under the Workmen's Compensation Act to chauffeurs. Each coverage must be written on the workmen's compensation form approved by the board at the regular rates for such coverage. Any company writing in violation is subject to a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 on each count, and in addition license of any company, agent or broker violating the ruling may be revoked or suspended.

For the first time in the history of the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Wisconsin Industrial Commission has awarded compensation for tuberculosis contracted in the course of employment, but not accidentally sustained. An operator of a wet grinder, whose family history showed no tuberculosis, contracted the disease. The commission found that by reason of the inhalation of dust and fine particles, frequently caused operators to contract tuberculosis. It therefore held that his particular employee had become afflicted with the disease by reason of his employment.

RUSSIAN POLISH AND SKILL AMAZES EUROPE DIPLOMATS

Clever Strategy Causes Older Nations to Revise Estimate of Reds

By HARRY N. RICHES
GENOA. — The biggest shock of Genoa has not been alone the spectacular things the Russians have done—but what they look like. World diplomats here expected to see wilder whippers, with knives in their teeth and pants in their boots. And they were shocked to find the Russians were not freaks at all. When the Russian delegates first arrived in Genoa there were many jokes at their expense and a disposition in some quarters not to take them seriously. Now, needless to say, the attitude toward them has changed entirely. From the moment they announced their treaty with Germany they have shown diplomatic cleverness and have proved their right to be treated at least as equals in one of the greatest diplomatic games ever played in Europe. They have occupied the center of the stage and the spotlight has never left them.

Fashionable Raiment
Far from being disheveled fanatics the Russians in appearance rank well up toward the top of all delegations. Almost without exception they are well dressed, and on all formal occasions their attire is strictly proper. The last detail of the propaganda effect of this has been very great, for adherence to convention means much in European official circles. In total quantity, whippers among the Russians are much less than in many other delegations. The five leaders of the Soviet delegation—Tchitcherin, Krassin, Litvinoff, Joffe and Rakonsky—are all men in the highest education. Their linguistic abilities are amazing. All speak Russian, German, French, Italian and English, some several other languages. They not only speak these languages, but speak them correctly.

Tchitcherin a Bachelor
Tchitcherin's English is flawless. At the opening session he read his speech in Russian, and translated it into French, then into English and finally into Italian. The five chief delegates are all about 50, and of distinguished appearance. Tchitcherin, a nobleman in the old regime, was in the czar's diplomatic service. He was educated in Russia and in Berlin and Paris and has a doctor of laws degree. He is one of the most powerful members of the Soviet government. None of the two delegates, Tchitcherin is not married. He is above average height, slightly stooped, wears a closely cropped mustache and imperial, and looks like a college professor.

Krassin for 25 years has been one of the leading electrical engineers in Europe. He was born in Siberia. While a prisoner there for political activity he helped build the Trans-Siberian railway. He was one of the original founders of the Bolshevik party in 1903 and has been active in it ever since.

Rakonsky's Career
Rakonsky, one of the most interesting of the group, was born in Hungary and educated in Swiss, German and French universities, obtaining a bachelor of laws degree from the University of Paris.

He has been a Socialist since he was 15 years old, and has been expelled from Bulgaria, Germany and Russia for Socialist activity.

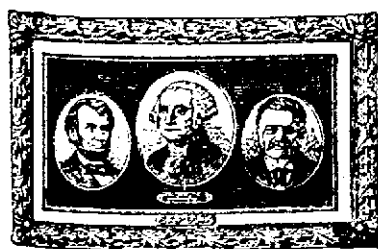

He was one of the leaders of the Russian revolution in 1905 and was jailed in Romania for Bolshevism in 1917.

He was released by 25 Russian soldiers, who took him to Russia, where he became one of the Soviet leaders.

Now Rakonsky is president of the Ukrainian Soviet Republic. He is short and stocky, with smooth face, and a keen sense of humor. He is in charge of Soviet propaganda at Genoa—and he's a past master at the job.

Litvinoff, a college professor taught many years in the Berlitz School of Languages in London. He is one of the most remarkable linguists in Europe, speaking practically all languages. He is of average physique and has neither mustache or beard.

Joffe is a lawyer of high standing, having a doctor of laws degree from the University of Munich. His whiskers here are white and luxuriant. Litvinoff and Joffe are Jews, but the other three are not, though there are several among the subordinates of the delegation. Their ability to speak languages gives the Russians a great advantage at the Genoa conference. Another great advantage is the fact that, excepting the British, they come better prepared with documents and figures than the other delegations. They insist on taking time to answer proposals and questions, but when they answer they back the answer up with figures that allied delegates are dazed. Some of the facts and figures won't stand analysis, but the allies are kept busy finding the weak spots.

Hardest Workers
The Russians, from Tchitcherin down, are the hardest workers at the conference. They are at it night and day, holding conferences among themselves, with the allies and with the Germans, and the rest of the time searching records and preparing documents.

The amount and character of the propaganda they turn out is amazing. There is always something for the journalists at Russian headquarters, and always somebody there who can speak any language. The other day one of Rakonsky's assistants gave a statement to English, Spanish, French, German and Italian correspondents in succession, and each correspondent said his language was spoken perfectly.

One of the most interesting reactions to the Russians' personality, as the almost universal belief among other delegates and journalists that, however mistaken they may be in their social and political ideas, they are sincere men, earnestly trying to accomplish the regeneration of Russia, along more advanced lines than ever before attempted in history.

If Russia succeeds in getting the full recognition she demands; it will be due in a great measure to the character and ability of the men sent here from Moscow.

TRAIN TRAVELS ON OIL FILM

When you travel on a train you are literally, being supported by a film of oil. On the whole train not one axle is touching the metal of the bearing in which it revolves. In a railway train the boxes, that will be seen at the ends of the axles on which the wheels are fixed, are filled with grease. A very thin film of this grease is spread all over the end of the axle and prevents it from actually touching the bearing in which it revolves. During a journey the original film is gradually worn away and the bearing begins to get hot owing to the increased friction. The heat melts the grease in the box and a fresh film is spread round the axle and reduces the friction.

Even in the enormous mills used for rolling armor plates, the entire weight of every moving part is literally floating on a film of oil. Were it not for this wonderful thin sheet of oil, a shaft turning in a bearing would become red-hot in a few minutes.

England has more than 4,000 owners of motor trucks.

SAYS EDUCATIONAL BABE RUTH IS NEED OF THE U. S. TODAY

Brain Power Wanted to Determine What is Needed in Colleges Says Boston Man

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—A university president as brainy as Babe Ruth is the need of America, Dr. A. E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, Boston, declared before the Kentucky Educational Association.

"Babe Ruth has a larger salary than any five university presidents," said Dr. Winship, "any ten state commissioners of education, any eight city superintendents, and if he makes as many home runs as in 1921 he will have $30,000 more than the president of the United States. His remuneration is not the result of trick work, is not made at the disadvantage of anybody, not due to striking oil, and not due to politics nor business combination. It is pure intensified brain power such as no other American equals.

Ruth's mind accurately estimates when and where the ball that is coming like lightning will cross the plate. At the same time he has decided just where to have his bat send the ball. "America is waiting for an equal-brainy university president to estimate what is best to equip students in college to give the best service in life."

HUGH S. HUGHES, OLD SETTLER OF MOUND PRAIRIE, IS DEAD

Monroe County Farmers Planning Booster Days at Tomah, Wilton, Sparta, Norwalk

SPARTA, Wis.—Another of the old and respected early settlers of Mound Prairie is dead. Hugh S. Hughes, who was born in Newburgh, Ont., Sept. 28, 1850. He came to this country in 1866 and settled with relatives in Ixonia, Wis.

In 1880, he was united in marriage to Grace Evans, Fish Creek. They made their home in New Cambria for one year and in the spring moved to Mound Prairie, where they have since resided. Ten children were born to them, all of whom are living, and all were at home for the funeral of their father, and this was the first time they were all home together. Edwin lives in Anacortes, Wash.; Mrs. Ada Harp, Wright, Minn.; Everett, of Snouqualine Falls, Wash.; Edgar, Henry, Alvin, Oswald, and Mrs. Grace Marco, all of West Salem; Robert and Mrs. Lillian Aney, and twelve grand children survive.

There are also two sisters, Mrs. Flory Owen, Wales, and Mrs. Hugh R. Roberts, Los Angeles, Cal., and one brother, Owen S. Hughes of Lake Crystal, Minn.

Interment was in Mound Prairie cemetery, Sunday, April 20. Rev. R. H. Ower, of Columbus, Wis., was the officiating clergyman.

The dairy farmers in this section of Monroe county are planning four dairy booster days, at Tomah, Wilton, Sparta and Norwalk, on May 23, 24, 25 and 26. These will be four festival days, of picnics, street parades, judging contests, automobile trips to different farms, and other stunts to emphasize the fact that it pays to have the best of everything in the dairy business.

Ried Murray, newly elected secretary of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' Association, and A. O. Colton, dairy extension specialist, Wisconsin College of Agriculture, will be here for the four days to do the speaking and judging.

Local committees will have charge of all the arrangements for the big event, and no efforts will be spared to put the festival over in good shape.

STRAIGHTENING A BIG CHIMNEY

Something resembling an earthquake swept along the Pacific coast not long ago and among the other manifestations was the tilting of a number of tall chimneys. They are now being straightened.

The first step in restoring a tall chimney to an upright position is to remove brickets, at intervals, from that side which is opposite to the direction in which it leans.

The result is that there are some six to twelve openings, and the whole weight of the chimney is supported by the remaining pillars of brickets. Hydraulic jacks are then inserted into the spaces from which the brickets have been removed, and these are so regulated that they support a weight equal to that of the brickets.

When these have been very carefully and firmly adjusted—an operation that demands both attention and experience—the rest of the brickets from the base are taken away, the whole weight of the chimney being borne by the jacks.

Gradually the pressure exerted by the jacks is released, and slowly the huge mass of brickwork becomes almost vertical. The chimney is not allowed to fall back to the strictly upright, as allowance has to be made for the settling of the new brickwork.

The spaces between the jacks are built up, and as soon as the new brickwork has had time to set, the hydraulic supports are taken away, and the whole of the base is bricked in.

It sounds easy enough, perhaps, but calculations have to be made with an absolute accuracy. A slight miscalculation might cause the towering mass of bricks and mortar to fall crashing to earth.

MORE PRECIOUS THAN DIAMONDS

The biggest parcel of radium ever purchased has just been brought to this country by Professor Soddy, of Oxford University; it contained two grams and was valued at $350,000.

There are 20 grains to an ounce, so that 2 grains weigh about one-fifth of an ounce, which is roughly the weight of one and a half cigarettes. A single ounce of radium would be worth no less than $7,050,000.

The great Cullinan diamond, when it was sent to England from South Africa, weighed 3 1/2 pounds and was valued at $7,500,000. So you see that weight for weight radium is nearly fifteen times as diamonds.

This is not surprising when you think that to obtain a single grain of radium it is necessary to crush tons and tons of the substance called pitchblende in which it is found. All the radium fields of the world do not produce half an ounce in a whole year's working.

NOT INSTINCT BUT OBSERVATION

The claim is made that animals do not eat and drink from instinct but they learn from observation either from their parents or others. If you have chicks and their mother isn't with them, you will have to press their heads into the water before they will drink. When with older birds, however, they learn by imitation.

A falcon flies round a lough, in wide circles to show her family how flying is done. Then she pushes a tiny bird off with her wing. The next day, when the little falcons have learned to keep aloft in the air, the mother follows them as they fly, driving them up against the wind, then round in graceful curves.

National League parks are building exits for "umps" only. They'll abolish the lively pop bottle next.

WHY DOCTORS ORDER TURNIPS

With a better and clearer understanding of the principles of hygiene, diet which requires a supply of fresh vegetables the year around, the turnip, formerly almost exclusively grown as a fall and winter crop, now takes an important place as an early summer vegetable and is sown in the spring with other early vegetables instead of as a fall crop exclusively, to be put in during July, usually as a succession to peas or early string beans.

The young and tender turnips, harvested when they reached the size of about two inches in diameter, form a delicate and tempting dish, much more delicate in flavor than when they have reached full maturity and with no chance for them to be pithy or woody.

The turnips do not like hot weather any more than do their close relatives, the radishes, and the seed should be put in the ground about the same time as radishes. They stand considerable frost without harm. By an early planting, a crop of young turnips will be ready for the table by the time the fall crop for fall consumption or for winter storage is ready to be planted.

For tenderness, they require good cultivation and to be kept going at top speed for the early crop. The later crop does not require the same attention as the plants grow more slowly and attain greater size. They will be hastened, however, with careful cultivation in order to conserve the moisture in the soil. During long dry spells, the young plants remain practically at a standstill and make the bulk of their growth during the cooler days of fall.

The turnips, like the cabbage, demands rich soil for its best development. Include some of the newer and finer types of turnip in your early planting plan. They will be very acceptable just as the earlier vegetables are on the wane and furnish a transition between the early and midsummer crops.

BRITISHERS VISIT UNEXPLORED REGION OF PANAMA JUNGLES

PANAMA.—The British explorers Mitchell Hedges and Major Fitzwilliam have just returned from a trip into the San Blas and Chucunaque river country, the first white men it is said, to penetrate that section of the isthmian jungles.

They brought back with them a large collection of Indian idols and primitive weapons, also pieces of cloth woven by the natives. These objects resemble in many ways those produced by the ancient Egyptians.

JAP PICTURE STAR SUES PRODUCERS FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Sessue Hayakawa, Japanese motion picture actor, has brought suit against the R. C. Pictures corporation, headed by Rufus Cole, for $92,000, charging breach of contract.

The actor alleges he entered into a contract with the defendants for the production of six pictures, for each of which he was to receive $20,000. He made two and received $40,000, but was discharged before the remainder were produced, he asserts.

The Rhodesian Skull's Story

A great deal of interest has been attached to the discovery of what is thought to be the skull of a primitive man which was uncovered in Rhodesia, South Africa. It is regarded as a very important find and in contrast to the Neanderthal skull, a specimen of the primitive man who walked in a crouching position, the Rhodesian man moved along in an upright position. The latter skull shows that the ancient peoples were troubled with dental diseases just the same as they are today.

FARWELL JURY OUT 50 HOURS BEFORE REACHING VERDICT

Farmers Faces 4 to 7 Year Term in Pen as Result of Conviction of Manslaughter

ATTORNEYS FOR FARWELL MOVE FOR A NEW TRIAL

Bail is Refused Pending Hearing on Motion

MADISON, Wis.—Hartwell Farwell, wealthy Dane county farmer, was found guilty of second degree manslaughter by a jury in Circuit court here Thursday afternoon, in connection with the fatal shooting of Theophil Hosten, his former employe, on the night of Jan. 9.

He faces as a penalty, a sentence of from four to seven years in the state penitentiary at Waupun.

The verdict came after the jurors had deliberated for fifty hours, the longest any Dane county jury ever took to reach a decision. Twelve middle-aged men composed the jury.

Placed Self-Defense
Farwell's defense was based on the plea that Hosten was about to attack him when he fired the fatal shot. He said the dead man, who had been his sister's sweetheart for four years, had made several threats against him. The state contended that Hosten was shot down as he came to see from the Farwell farm after he had been surprised in a clandestine tryst with Alice Farwell, 52 year old sister of the defendant.

Ask New Trial
Attorneys for Farwell made a motion for a new trial as soon as the verdict was read. Judge Stevens said that date for hearing on the motion would be set later. He refused bail for Farwell, who was taken to the county jail.

On the first ballot in the juryroom five jurors stood for first degree murder with the remaining members voting various degrees of murder and manslaughter. The forty-eight hour discussion and balloting finally resulted in an agreement on second degree manslaughter.

A Grand Start
A minister home from the trenches, in recounting his experiences among the Scottish regiments, told of a wounded Jack whom he found rather depressed.

On being asked whether he would like to dictate a letter home the man assented. Thereupon the minister brought a table with writing materials to his bedside and prepared to take down the letter.

However, he found Jack tongue-tied and unable to begin, as much that the parson said after a while: "Come along, now, I'm in a hurry! We must make a start. What shall I say?"

No reply
"Shall I begin, 'My dear wife?'" "Yes," said Jack, "right that down. That'll amuse her!"—St. Paul News.

Too Realistic
A beautiful actress of the Paris stage has just related a somewhat terrifying experience which befell her during a recent holiday near Wiesbaden.

When she arrived, every hotel was full up, and she was faced with the prospect of having to return to Paris when an offer was made her. "The only bed in the place was in the ward of a small surgical hospital."

She took it. In the dim dawn attendants entered the room with a stretcher, seized hold of the actress, and, despite her cries, carried her off to the operating theater and placed her on the table.

Just before the anesthetic was applied, and while the surgeon was preparing his instruments, the actress was able to convince them that a mistake had been made.—St. Paul News.

Upside Down
Writing to the editor of the Pall-mall, John P. Irish, recounts some of the hardships of pioneer life and tells the story of one of those pioneer women and her granddaughter, who asked:

"Grandma, you were here in the early days?"
"Yes, I was a pioneer."
"Well, were you poor?"
"Yes, we were all poor."
"Couldn't you have what you wanted?"

"No, I could not."
"Did you have no meat?"
"No, nothing but venison, wild turkeys, prairie chickens and quails."
"Did you have no sugar?"

"Nothing but maple sugar."
"What did you want that you couldn't have?"

"It was New Orleans molasses and salt mackerel."—St. Paul News.

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM" — RIVOLI

The Griffith public is its own dramatic critic. When Mr. Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm" now at the Rivoli, first was shown in New York City, the reactions of the crowds that daily filled the theater were more carefully studied than even producers of the "speakers" are in the habit of doing, with the result that Mr. Griffith's dramatic epic was edited and enlarged according to the consensus of theater-goers. For instance, audiences like Pleard so well that a fortnight after opening he enlarged the role. Taking Creighton Hale and a group of players up to the Mammoth Studios he staged new Cameragual dances, new comedy and new clowning to exhibit still further the versatility and humor of that party-agon of valets. In the second half of "Orphans of the Storm," Mr. Griffith within ten days changed the action vitally, all due to his study of audience sympathies. The tragedy of Pierre Frochard was removed and the story of the cripple received a new and happy ending. The length of the great climax was cut slightly without eliminating any of the high points that touch the feelings or create suspense. This again was based on broad study of what the average spectator can pleasantly endure.

TOM MIX — MAJESTIC
"We never suspected he had it in him"—It never realized he was the actor he is! and sundry and numerous other remarks of surprise and pleasure that one heard on every side Thursday night at the Majestic Theater, just after the finish of "The Rough Diamond," the latest production starring Tom Mix, fully expresses the reaction that everyone felt. For the first time they were treated to a Mix photoplay minus the usual western atmosphere and characters—a romantic production that dealt with bold adventure on land and on sea and ranged from an American town to a revolution in a seething tropical republic.

The outstanding feature of the production that furnished most of the surprise and pleasure, was the work of the star in the broad comedy scenes of the story, preceding the romantic and dramatic scenes.

The Denarius
The word penny occurs a number of times in our English version of the New Testament, especially in the four Gospels; for instance, Matthew 20:2: "And when he had agreed with the laborers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard." The coin to which the name penny is given, was the denarius, a Roman silver coin in circulation in the time of Our Lord and the Apostles. It was the principal silver coin then in use throughout the Roman Empire. From the parable of the laborers in the vineyard it would seem that a denarius was then the ordinary pay for a day's labor.

FAULTY GAS HOSE CAUSES DEATH OF FAMILY OF FIVE

CHICAGO, Ill.—The fifth victim of a tragedy which wiped out the entire family of John Janny, 45, was added to the list of deaths from accidental asphyxiation when Caroline, 14, died Friday.

Neighbors late Thursday discovered Janny, his wife and two sons, dead from the fumes of a disconnected gas hose. All were sleeping when the accident occurred Wednesday night.

"Funny Bone"
Funny bone, or crazy bone, the latter being the more common locution in America, is a term popularly applied to what anatomists call the humor which jars the humor, a blow upon which jars the humor, and produces a funny tingling sensation. An old dissecting room joke for the first year students is, "Why is the funny bone so called? Because it borders on the humorous."—Chicago Journal.

MAGNIDER APPEALS FOR WORK TO AID JOBLESS VETERANS

National Commander of Legion Tells of Dire Plight of Thousands

By HANFORD MACNIDER
National Commander, American Legion

INDIANAPOLIS.—The American Legion repeats its appeal to every American to exert himself and to join with his neighbor in giving employment to the ex-service man who needs it.

It was our estimate that 700,000 of our comrades were out of work and in great need. In nearly every city and town of the country groups of public-spirited citizens have come forward with jobs to relieve the suffering of our buddies. In many instances the work offered, and so gladly received, is temporary. Not has there been enough to go around.

Not For a Day

Our appeal is not for a day only. We are constantly asking every community to give deep thought to this problem and to do everything possible to provide work for these men.

Undoubtedly the worst condition is in the large cities where these young heroes throughout the cold winter have tramped the streets from early morning to late at night, trying to find a job, any kind of a job, that would enable them to live in the country they fought to preserve. Always behind these men are the women and children suffering as they suffer, staring as they stare.

The World War was 3000 miles away to most Americans until our own casualty lists began to be published. This need of employment by the service man may seem to be exaggerated or not to exist in your community just because you don't see it. But the unemployment casualty lists are in your very neighborhood. Find the victims and help them! You will find them eager and ambitious to help themselves.

Sell Their Blood

In Cleveland the Legion maintains a bureau for its unemployed buddies. These men have been picking up money by supplying almost all the blood needed for transfusion operations at Lakeside Hospital. One call for blood came at 8 o'clock one morning and a few minutes later 25 ex-service men appeared at the hospital, ready to sell their life-blood.

An ex-soldier of Dallas, Texas, ill for a long period and just out of his bed, saw a "Male Help Wanted" ad in the newspaper. Two other men saw it at the same time. They caught a street car, the ex-soldier pushed the car but foot-loosed it for a mile and beat the other applicants to a job.

Jobless Officers

Twelve majors, five naval commanders, 27 captains and nearly 100 lieutenants of the days of glory applied for any kind of jobs at the Legion employment bureau, New York, in the space of a few months.

An ex-captain of Emporia, Kan., jobless and stranded in Chicago, was promised a job in Los Angeles, Cal. Lacking money to get there, he started walking—selling chewing gum bought with borrowed money to pay his expenses. "It's 1500 miles, but jobs are scarce," he said.

In Providence, R. I., a young ex-service man was "fired" because he stayed at home the day a child was born to his wife. He hadn't money enough to get an attendant—and now he hasn't even a place to work, though he has searched diligently. One Legion post in New York had saved up money, gained by dances and entertainments, for several years back, intending to build a nice clubhouse. But they couldn't do it and see their buddies shivering in Bryant Park. They took their money, went to the park at midnight and blew "moss call." Four hundred ex-service men lined up in a few minutes. This one post fed these men in restaurants each night until its building fund was exhausted.

What Shall He Do

Here is an extract from a letter received by a St. Paul, Minn., newspaper editor: "I served 18 months overseas, seven in actual fighting, and was wounded. Am walking the streets day in and day out looking for work with no avail, with a $90 grocery bill staring me in the face and two months' back rent also and one threatening to put me out and no credit from the other. What are my babies going to do? Starve? And my poor worried wife?"

Warmer weather is here, for which these unhappy comrades of ours are thankful. But they can starve as easily in summer as in winter. They can as easily believe the country for which they fought has forgotten them. All they want is a chance to work, to become self-supporting citizens of their communities. We have asked all our jobless to go back to their home towns. Now we ask their home towns to help them. Give them work!

No Way Out

"See here," protested the lawyer. "If I'm going to defend you, you'll have to drop that guilty look." "I can't help it," replied his client. "I'm now in the bootlegging business, and I have such a poor memory for faces, for all I know I may have solicited the judge."

MEXICO ON EDGE AS VILLA STARTS HIS "COME BACK"

Candidate for Governor of Durango; Violates Truce With Obregon

EL PASO, Tex.—The announcement that Francisco Villa intends to run for the governorship of the state of Durango comes on the eleventh anniversary of his capture of Juarez, when he was a Maderista general.

In a little more than 11 years Villa has been a hunted outlaw, general of a revolutionary army, dictator of Mexico, border raider and rancher. This governorship is the first political office he ever has sought, although he could have been president of Mexico had he so chosen.

Farm life, even if on a tract of 200,000 acres, is like a game to Villa after having spent 11 years in the saddle, with the troops most of the time.

Although he entered into solemn compact with President Obregon to "stay put," in return for which Villa was given a small kingdom, riches and peace, it remains to be seen whether the former dictator will regard the contract as a mere scrap of paper. For among the stipulations Villa agreed to was one binding himself to keep out of both state and national politics.

Won't Be Bound
Villa doesn't like to be bound to anything. His breaking away from restraint, his violation of his compact, his defiance of the Obregon administration, coming at the very time when the United States was about to extend recognition to Mexico, is fraught with grave possibilities.

Villa may be induced to withdraw his candidacy; he may stay in the race and be defeated. But Mexican officials are nervous, for whether elected or defeated for office, they fear it will start Villa on another rampage.

If defeated, he will not take it kindly. He could do many things in resentment. If elected he may want to supersede federal powers. For Villa is not content with being an underling. So there you are—the same old Villa, same old menace.

Reports from Durango are to the effect that Villa's announcement has caused a furor. There is strong support for Villa and strong opposition, too, and Mexico is not accustomed to settling its big issues by ballot. The state of Coahuila, a neighbor to Durango, is also disturbed and the fire, if not quenched, may spread. For Mexico hasn't had time yet to drop the insurrection habit.

Has Bodyguard of 200

Villa has a bodyguard of 200 men, all former soldiers, faithful and good shots. He has many other employees on his big ranch. Raising crops and stock and marketing them may be profitable but they are not in Villa's line. He is not a farmer or ranchman and subordinates supervise all the work. The ranch, its many tractors and other farm machinery were toys for a while, but the former dictator has grown tired of playing with them and longs for a new game—and it may be the old game, a game which kept Mexico embroiled and which all but took in the United States.

What Obregon will do is not known. Probably, he doesn't know what to do. If he orders Villa to stick to his treaty, this might make an avowed enemy of him. If he sends a federal army to compel him to abide by his pledges, this means war.

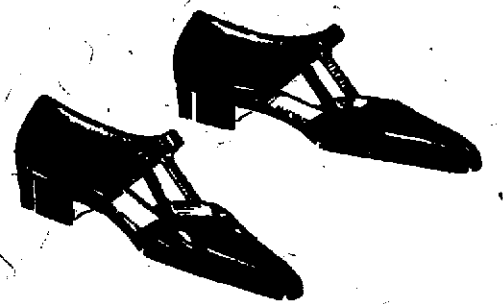

A pretext would be all that Villa would need. Temporarily with the Durango ranches also is dangerous.

It all depends upon the ambitions of the former general.

Villa is fifty, young enough to still be ambitious.

HATTON MENTIONED AS CANDIDATE FOR BADGER GOVERNOR

New London Man also Considered for U. S. Senatorship on Citizens' Ticket

CAME WITHIN ONE VOTE OF SENATORSHIP IN YEAR 1907

Former Senator Long Identified
With Progressive Movement

MADISON Wis.—The name of former state senator W. H. Hatton of New London, who for 25 years has been a prominent figure in Wisconsin politics, is again being mentioned here as one to receive serious consideration for the governorship or U. S. Senatorship on the Republican ticket selected by the Citizens' Republican conference at Milwaukee, June 1.

Mr. Hatton, in Madison today, explained that he was always actively interested in Wisconsin public affairs, having spent a large part of his time during the past quarter century in the service of the state both in an official and unofficial capacity.

In 1907 Senator Hatton came within one vote of being elected United States Senator over Isaac Stevenson in one of the memorable political fights of the state's history. On nine ballots in the legislature he had 50 votes to 48 for Stevenson, with a majority of all members necessary under an agreement between the candidates. It developed later that two members had been held out until a new alignment gave Stevenson the necessary 51 votes to insure his election.

Eight years later in 1915 Senator Hatton was a candidate for governor against Governor McGovern and E. L. Phillips, who was elected at that time. He has since been a member of the state board of public affairs and has taken an active interest in public matters for years.

Until recent years Mr. Hatton has been a La Follette leader, and is author of a number of the so-called progressive laws of Wisconsin.

HOUSTON HE-MAN JURY FOILS FIGHT FOR WOMEN JURORS

Clears DeSoto Man, Preventing Taking of Case to Minnesota Supreme Court

CALEDONIA, Minn.—Whether woman were "wrongfully and intentionally" left off the jury panel "in an attempt to disfranchise legally qualified electors" from jury duty, at the term of the district court for Houston county, just closed, will never be judicially determined, because the last thing the court did was to refuse from the jury list to remove from the ranking names of the Stillwater penitentiary, Henry Joseph of De Soto, Wisconsin, the man who raised the woman juror question, thus keeping it from the supreme court of Minnesota.

The case was woman against man, technically written in the records as State of Minnesota vs. Henry Joseph, charged with abandonment of his child, Gwendolyn. The trial occupied about three days and caused much comment on account of the prominence of the parties involved.

Henry Joseph, son of William Joseph, president of the village of De Soto, married Harriet Chapel, daughter of Richard Chapel, well-to-do farmer of Houston county, Minnesota. They lived at DeSoto until about a year ago when the wife was taken to the Grandview hospital in La Crosse. She then went with her child to her parents in Houston county to recuperate. She never returned to DeSoto. The husband claimed she should not go back but that he had sent her money from time to time. The wife maintained he refused to take her back to DeSoto. In due time the grand jury indicted the husband for not properly supporting the three-year-old child Gwendolyn.

The defendant asked Judge Melgren to quash the whole jury on the ground that two meetings of the jury commissioners had elapsed since women were given the right to sit on juries and although they had the buildings of the county in charge they gave as an excuse that there were no proper accommodations for women jurors. District Attorney Flynn characterized the move on the part of the defense as "only one more monkey wrench tossed into the machinery of justice" by Fred H. Hartwell and Lawrence J. Brody, of La Crosse, Joseph's attorneys.

Richard Loftus, banker; William Joseph, merchant and banker; Mrs. May Coxwell, postmistress; Mrs. Myrtle Oliver, telephone operator; and Mr. Ed. Davis, retired, all from De Soto, were witnesses, as was also Mrs. George Schissler of La Crosse. The jury found Joseph not guilty and he now proposes to start a legal battle for the possession of his little daughter.

Shades of brown suggest the far East. Periwinkle and cornflower blues from the spring card are shown again. Among the woolen group there is a novel tan shade called pigskin. A new red is introduced called akbar. Shoe and hosiery colors feature silver, mist and pigeon rays and fawns, otter and mouse shades. Browns also are much used.

IRISH FREE STATE HAS ITS MOONSHINE PROBLEM TO SETTLE

Growth of Bootlegging Cause of Anxiety to Irish Prohibitionists

DUBLIN.—The making of moonshine liquor in Ireland has assumed alarming proportions and threatens to impair Erin's standing in the British Isles as the most temperate of the group.

The traffic in illicit liquor or "moonshine" is described by the Catholic Total Abstinence Society as a by-product of the conflict in Ireland, and its rapid growth during the past three years was condemned by many of the bishops in their recent Lenten pastoral letters. Even the Daily Freeman, in spite of the many weighty political questions confronting it, has taken note of the situation and appointed a Commission of Inquiry to examine the excesses which one bishop declares "are gravely demoralizing the masses of the people."

Ireland's drink bill for 1921 amounted to 30,200,000 pounds, of which nearly half went to the British Exchequer in taxation. Formidable as this figure may appear, however, comparative statistics for the United Kingdom show that the drink record of Ireland was lower by a comfortable margin than that of England, Wales or Scotland. Per capita of the population, Ireland consumed 6 pounds 14s in drink last year as compared with 8 pounds 17s for England and Wales, 7 pounds, 10s 6d for Scotland. But these estimates are based solely on the liquor that pays tax, therefore the patient commentators of dizzy statistics are endeavoring to ascertain Erin's standing with the addition of her bootleg fraternity.

While there is no move in Ireland for prohibition there is a strong public sentiment in favor of temperance, and it is believed that the Free State government when established will among its earliest legislation pass laws intended to check abuses. In the area of the Northern Parliament there is a strong party, mainly composed of members of the Presbyterian church, which favors total prohibition. But the pressure of current politics and the need for keeping a united front against any interference by the South with northern independence has induced a temporary shelving of the question not only at the elections but in the Parliament itself.

Algiers.—Before the war natives of the Soudan bought wives for four spear heads. Now they have to pay eight.

THE RAZOR HABIT

Apart from its ancient religious significance shaving had its uses in military purposes. The beard formed a too convenient handle in the combats of alien days, and Alexander the Great accordingly issued an army order to shave.

It is curious to notice the reversions of fashion in the matter. The huge manes of the Assyrians show the conquering armies full-bearded and only the slaves and captives shaven, but at a later period it was the Norman conquerors who were clean-shaven, and the bearded barbarians who were the conquered.

In passing, two quaint "shaving laws" might be noticed. Peter the Great of Russia's heavily taxed his subjects' beards, and the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland once passed a law that every Irishman must shave his upper lip or be reckoned an enemy.

MASONS BACKED FIRST PAPER PUBLISHED IN REPUBLIC OF MEXICO

Society of "Old Timers" Digs up History of English Language Papers in Mexico

MEXICO CITY.—Organization of the "Society of Old Timers of Mexico," recruited from Americans and Britishers who have resided in Mexico for more than 20 years, has revealed some interesting history in connection with the activities of English-language newspapers here since the republic was founded.

The Masonic Monitor, devoted to the cause of Masonry, was the first newspaper printed in English to appear in Mexico after its independence was achieved. It was founded in 1826 and edited by the Rev. Joseph Poinsett, the United States minister to Mexico, whose journalistic efforts were incidental to his diplomatic duties.

The first newspaper of general information to make its appearance was the American Star, founded by Bernard and Brennan in Vera Cruz during the occupation of that city by General Winfield Scott. When the American forces moved to Mexico City the American Star followed the colors and for a year was published as a weekly.

Some interesting data may be obtained from the files of this paper. Frequent reference is made to the social activities of Captain Robert E. Lee and Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant who, judging from the society columns, were well known throughout the capital. "Parson" Jackson, who during the Civil war achieved greatness as the immortal "Stonewall," also broke into print frequently.

Perhaps the most conspicuous example of the English-language newspaper ever founded in the republic was the Mexican Herald whose first issue appeared in 1895. It fell afoul of the Carranza administration in 1916 and its editor, Paul Hudson, closed up shop. The Herald was the first newspaper in Mexico to use a leased wire for a general foreign news report.

Throughout the past 20 years numerous trade papers have appeared, some last only a few months and a few several years. Among these

RUSSIAN FURS WILL BE PLACED ON THE MARKET NEXT FALL

Immense Stock of Astrachan, Sable and Ermine Now Held in Storage at Moscow

MOSCOW.—A huge quantity of new Russian furs, stored in a warehouse near the Kremlin and regarded by the Soviet government as part of its national treasury, is expected to be placed on the market early next fall.

The immense stock, consisting largely of astrachan, sable and ermine, is the largest single supply of furs in Russia, and will be held in reserve until the Soviets have re-established their world trade sufficiently to obtain a good market.

While this supply is not for sale, the national treasury continues to operate a retail department where mink, fox and other of the cheaper skins are sold. The public has unshaken confidence in this branch of the government, for it has found the furs to be in good condition, well tanned and reasonable in price. A monkey

CARDS WIN WEIRD GAME FROM REDS

Score Six Runs in Ninth to Win Decision Over 8 to 7

KENNETH WILLIAMS CLOUTS TENTH HOMER THIS YEAR

Faber Driven from Mound by Slugging Indians

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—St. Louis staged a ninth inning rally on Thursday, overcoming a four run lead, and defeated Cincinnati 8 to 7. The visitors had been trailing up to the ninth inning when they scored six runs. The Cardinals came back in their half and piled up five tallies with only one man out. Stock and Bohne were ordered off the field for disputing a decision. Score: Cincinnati—000 000 016—7. St. Louis—003 000 005—8. Batteries: Donohue, Schnell, Couch, Luque and Wingo; Walker, Sherdel and Ainsmith.

WILLIAMS BOOSTS HOME RUN RECORD TO TEN

DETROIT—Heilmann's home run with Cobb and Veach on bases in the ninth inning gave Detroit three runs and a 6 to 5 victory over St. Louis here on Thursday. The Browns got away to a three run lead in the first inning, but Detroit tied it up and the visitors again took the lead in the fifth, when Kenneth Williams hit his tenth home run of the year with Sisler on base. Score: St. Louis—300 020 000—5. Detroit—021 000 003—6. Batteries: Van Gilder and Severeld; Johnson, Oldham, Olson and Bassler.

INDIANS CHASE FABER

CHICAGO—Urban Faber, star pitcher of the Chicago White Sox, was unable to check the slugging of the Indians and Cleveland made it two straight from the locals on Thursday, 5 to 3. Mails weakened in the last inning, when Chicago started a rally which netted three runs, but tightened up and retired Hooper on strikes for the final out with two men on base. Score: Cleveland—020 001 200—5. Chicago—000 000 003—3. Batteries: Mails and O'Neill; McWeeney, Faber and Schalk.

FEAR MOB VIOLENCE AGAINST YOUTH WHO KILLED SWEETHEART

MASON CITY, Ia.—Worth county officials Thursday removed Irvin Bonker, 21, who has confessed he killed his sweetheart, Rebecca Nelson, at a schoolhouse near Manly to the jail for safekeeping. Feeling at Northwood was said to be running high. Bonker, according to police, confessed the shooting, which occurred before a schoolroom of pupils, and stated he was temporarily crazed by liquor. The direct cause of his anger was the refusal of Miss Nelson to accompany him to a party. A warrant is being prepared for the man who sold Bonker the liquor.

WISCONSIN AND ILLINOIS ATHLETES IN FIELD DAY COMPETITION ON SATURDAY

MADISON, Wis.—Wisconsin will have a field day with Illinois on Saturday when the track teams and baseball teams of the two rival institutions meet in two contests which will decide the supremacy of the schools in each sport.

The Illinois track team has already demonstrated its ability by piling up twice as many points at the Drake relays as gathered by any other team. The Badgers will meet the strongest competition the conference has to offer in the distance runs and in most of the field events. Wisconsin is counting on Wall in the distances, Spetz in the dashes, Sundt in the weights, Merrick in the pole vault and Knollin in the hurdles to garner most of their points of the day.

On the diamond the Badgers are more confident. Although suffering an overwhelming defeat at the hands of Michigan last Saturday, the team says that it had an off day on hits while the Wolverines were on a batting grampage, and that the battle with Illinois will be of a different nature.

Paddock is expected to pitch for the Badgers on that day with Barry behind the bat. The Wisconsin catcher has been demonstrating his ability with the bat during the past few games as the leading hitter. After defeating Notre Dame 10 to 4 on Monday, Wisconsin is confident that its team is in good form again. A much more formidable competition is looked for on the track. Illinois has its four distance men, Yates, McGinnis, Patterson and Wharton who clipped six seconds from the world four mile relay record.

Merrick for Pole

McGinnis and Patterson also finished first and second in the mile run at the conference indoor meet, and Wharton, Swanson and Scott finished in the order named in the two mile. Wisconsin has no one but Wall to meet the time of these men in their events.

For Wisconsin, Merrick is counted on to win the pole vault. Spetz the 440 yard dash, Knollin the high and low hurdles and Sundt the shot put. Platten of Wisconsin is not counted on to best Osborne of Illinois, who jumped 6 feet 6 inches at the Drake relays.

The contests of Saturday will test the strength of both the Badger track and baseball teams.

LITTLE FELLERS

There's a great big army of little fish that don't seem to get the proper credit for all the fun and pleasure they have given fishermen. Of course old man, a great big chunk of this fun, happened way back in the kuccants' stage of most fellow's fishing days, but at that, when the real game fellows are off the feed and prospects appear good for an empty stringer, and it looks like bacon and flapjacks for the evening meal, just toss out a line and give the little fellows a nibble at your bait. These little old nibblers include, in their ranks the crappie, rock bass, blue gill, sunfish and yellow or striped perch.

As a pan fish you can't beat 'em. Browned to a turn in plenty of bacon grease or broiled over the open campfire is a dish that would make even J. D. forget his stomach, and after an hour on the trail or a particularly hard portage you think your lucky stars when the feed bag has a generous portion of "little fellers" done to a turn.

Of course, they don't put up a scream of a fight like their cousins the basses, but they are accommodating little cusses and bite any time in the day and most any time in the season, especially when at a time the real game fellows have a tendency to overlook a good thing in the shape of bait or lure. Although they only make a short little fight, there's a way of fishing for them that will give you a little bit of fun and pleasure even to sure-enough fisherman who is seemingly shocked when you even mention pan fish to him. Of course, most of that disdain stuff is merely bull on the part of the fellow that hops up in the clouds when you mention little pannies. I've known lots of 'em to sneak out alone and have a piece of sport with the "little fellers" when they thought no one was watching and there was no chance of injuring their rep as highbrow anglers.

LOCAL NORMAL OPENS TRACK SEASON ON SATURDAY WITH WINONA TEACHERS' COLLEGE

THE La Crosse Normal school track season will open next Saturday with a dual meet with the Teachers' College of Winona. Though they have been out only since returning to school after the Easter recess, the Normal track squad is showing up well and is expected to make a good showing in the preliminary meet Saturday.

The squad was hard hit by the graduation of several of the star performers last June, but the new men who have appeared promise to equal the records hung up by their predecessors. From last year's team, which took second at the state meet at the University, there are left in school "Shorty" Field, winner of the two mile race and second in the mile, and Volney Hanson and Kenneth Royal, both of whom won places in the weights last season. These are the only point winners from last year's team who are again out.

The Winona aggregation expects to give La Crosse a good run in the meet Saturday. The Teachers are weak in the high jump, and have only one pole vaulter, Pellowski, who is relied upon to place. Gross, Von drashek, O'Hara and Hassinger are being counted upon to garner most of their points, with Christopherson and Wedge also picked as strong contenders in the distance runs and the hurdles.

Everything In Readiness For Sunday Battle

Final arrangements and details of the opening day program of the baseball season here on Sunday when the Peerless Chains of Winona clash with the Nelson ball club at Copeland Park have been completed. It was announced today by R. C. Davidson, president of the local club.

Euphoria of fans was assuming unprecedented proportions with the grand opening, but forty-eight hours distant. Superintendent Ritter, of parks, has been employing a crew of men ballasting the diamond with clay and indications were that the field would be in the best of condition.

Nelson officials announced an infield and batting practice for Friday evening which would perhaps conclude the workouts before the teams take the field Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Signal practice will also be a part of the order for tonight.

HOLD UP PURSES OF OHIO BOXERS NO REASON GIVEN

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio.—Payment to Jeff Smith of Baronne, N. J., and Bob Meha of Milwaukee of their share of the receipts from their bout here Wednesday night has been ordered held up by the Youngstown boxing commission. It became known Friday. No reason was given. It also was announced that the club which promoted the bout may be suspended.

BETTER GET YOUR BASEBALL PASS

Winners in the Tribune baseball problem contest better shake a wicked hoof and call for their passes before the opening game Sunday afternoon. The single pasteboards are good only for this game. Speed up or the waste paper basket will beat you to it.

ELECTION CONTROL THROUGH MONEY DECRIED BY HUBER

Dane County Senator in Address Here Says Slush Fund Will Undermine Government

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF LATE JAMES THOMPSON

Sounds Warning of Proposed "Slaughter of Progressives"

That the excessive use of money to control elections is an evil which if not checked will undermine the very foundations of government, was the declaration of State Senator H. A. Huber, Dane county, in an address Thursday night before the Progressive club in Yeomen hall. Mr. Huber was introduced by J. J. Vorchota, president of the Trades and Labor Council. The hall was thronged. Mr. Huber spoke for about an hour and a half and was the only speaker on the program.

Tribute to Jim Thompson

In opening his address Mr. Huber paid tribute to the late James Thompson.

"I am glad of the opportunity to address an audience, in what was the home town of that man of sterling worth, that true Progressive, who pledged principle above party, and in whose untimely death, the Progressive cause has lost one of its foremost leaders in this state,—your fellow townsman and fellow citizen,—James Thompson," said Mr. Huber. "During the campaign, a few days before the election, when he was an independent Progressive candidate for United States Senator, he delivered an address in the city of Stoughton. We had the pleasure and honor of entertaining him at our home. In the course of our conversation, in speaking of the campaign, he said to me, 'I know I am fighting an uphill fight; I cannot win out in this contest; I am making the fight for the good of the Progressive cause.' O, that we had more men of the Jim Thompson type, in the Progressive ranks today."

Calloused in Use of Money

"The excessive use of money to control primaries and elections is so prevalent in this day and age that I sometimes think we have become calloused to its existence and careless as to its consequences." "I believe no greater service can be rendered to the people of this country than to be vigilant and focusing attention on this subject. As I view it, this is one of the most important questions before the American people today. I believe if this growing evil is not checked, the inevitable result will be that it will undermine the very foundation of our Government. Rome trod the primrose path of wealth and ostentation and now the Roman government is only a name in history."

Senator Huber quoted Chief Justice E. G. Ryan of Wisconsin supreme court, who in the famous railroad cases said that the great problem in this country was to determine which should rule, "money or intellect," "degraded or patriotic free men or the feudal lords of corporate capital."

Huge Campaign Funds

"A committee of the United States senate, in investigating campaign expenditures, in the last national campaign of candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, reports that there was expended in behalf of General Wood $1,773,303, and for Governor Landon, $414,081. The report further shows that $25,500 was spent in one of the southern states in behalf of one of the candidates in buying up the colored vote of that state, and that two of the delegates to the convention from the state of Missouri were paid twenty-five hundred dollars each for their vote."

"Senator Underwood of Alabama, recently said that in the primaries held in that state, in 1920, there was very little doubt in the minds of men who talked to him in Alabama that one of his opponents and organizations supporting him expended a minimum of $250,000."

"In the Newberry scandal, the Senate committee that made an investigation, reports that there was expended in behalf of Truman H. Newberry, candidate for United States Senator from the state of Michigan the sum of $190,000. Others estimate that an accurate report might show half a million dollars."

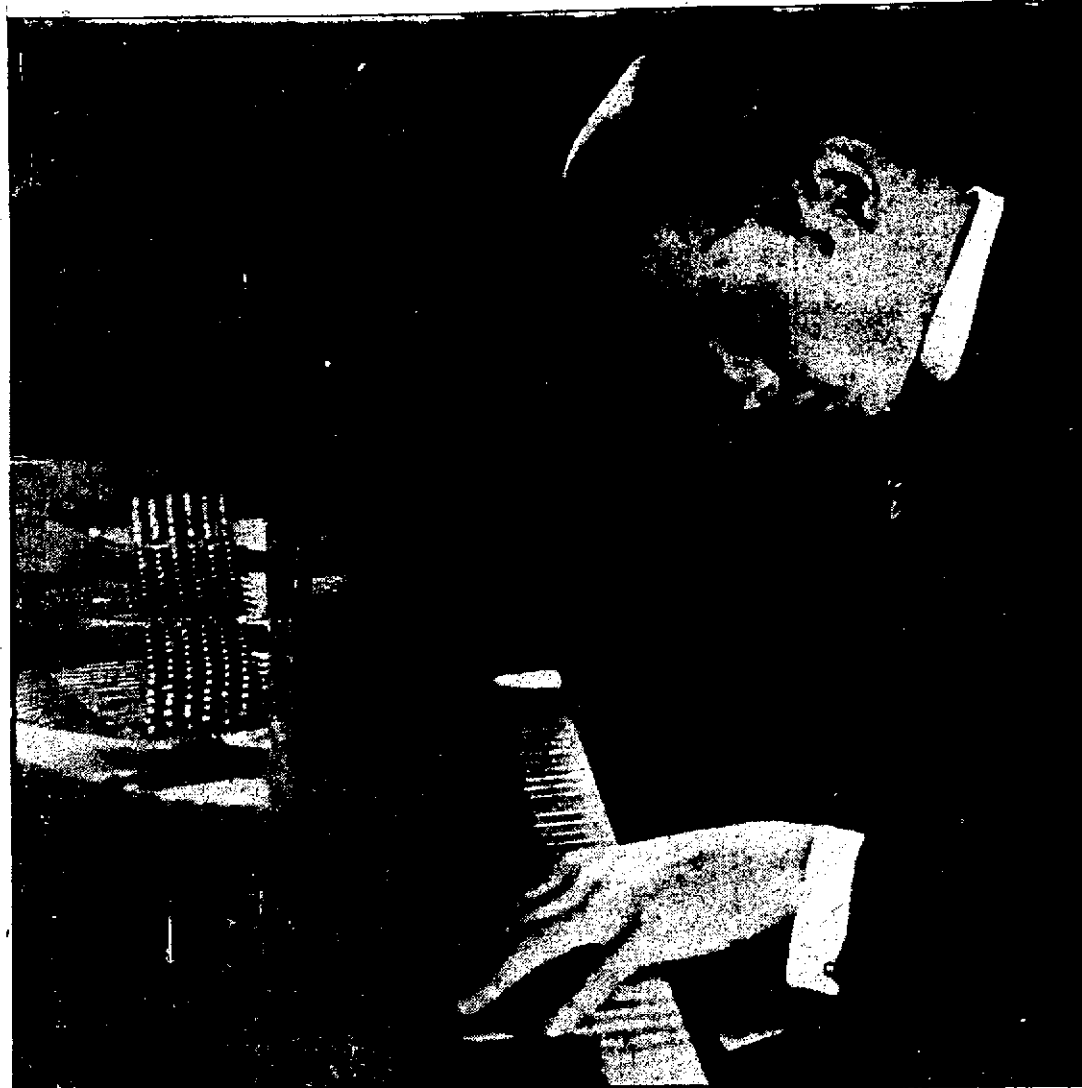

"In commenting on the Newberry election someone has very appropriately suggested that a tablet be placed at the entrance of the Senate chamber with the words inscribed upon it 'Pay as you enter.'"

The Senate characterized the excessive use of money in the Newberry campaign as "being contrary to sound public policy, harmful to honor and dignity of the Senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government." And yet, Truman H. Newberry occupies a seat in the United States Senate. How long will the American people submit to the corrupt use of money to secure a seat in the United States Senate?

Charges Slush Fund Here

"The governor of a state stands in a very high and august position in relation to all the people of the commonwealth. He is the governor of all the people. He must be fair to all. He must carefully weigh every statement that justice shall be done. Conscious of this fact I desire to draw your attention to a speech made three weeks ago by Gov. John J. Blaine at Watertown. In that address he charged that there had been subscribed by corporations in Wisconsin the exact and specific sum of $220,000 to defeat Senator La Follette, himself and other progressives, and that this organization which has raised this sum is 'now busy.'"

"The governor said something more. He said that an examination of the amounts contributed by various tax-dodging corporations to this looter's club showed that each paid approximately ten percent of the amount which they had defrauded the state in income taxes. Mark well the governor's thought in his announcement. He told you that if a corporation defrauded the state of $25,000 in income taxes that it would be found that it contributed $2,500 to this corrupt fund to defeat Senator La Follette and himself."

"Marked for Slaughter" "What does this mean? It means that Senator La Follette, Governor Blaine and the progressives have been marked for slaughter because of their policy in demanding that the profiteers and those who are able to pay, shall bear their just burden of taxes. And that in order to accomplish this they have started a bloodbath among the profiteers in which all must contribute the biblical tithe toward the plunder to defeat the progressives."

"The question naturally suggests itself 'Is Wisconsin to be Newberryized' in the coming campaign?"

DIVORCED MEN EACH RE-MARRIED TO THE OTHER MAN'S WIFE

Divorce Court Shuffle Ends Happily for Two Milwaukee Couples

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Unique in the history of the divorce courts was the intermarriage of two couples who had received divorces within four days of each other, the men recently marrying each other's former wife. This is not a riddle, but the case of the Bleamers and Blankenhorns of Milwaukee.

On April 20, 1918, Valesa Lisette Bleamer, 41, was divorced from her husband, William, 43. Four days later Charles F. Blankenhorn, 39, obtained a decree from Ethel J. 38, a waitress. Each couple have a child and the husbands were ordered to pay for the support of the children.

Recently Mrs. Bleamer married Mr. Blankenhorn. Not to be outdone, Mrs. Blankenhorn married Mr. Bleamer. The Bleamer boy is being taken care of by the Blankenhorns and the Blankenhorn's little girl is with the Bleamers. In order to assist the alimony clerk and expedite book-keeping the couples Friday made petition in circuit court asking that they be permitted to file only receipts for the $6 required for the respective children.

"It is the first case of its kind on record," Attorney Peter J. Hayes said. "Beautiful harmony exists in

NAT NAZARRO AND HIS "PICKS" BILLED FOR SUNDAY SHOW

A feature act of an entirely new sort, that has been "knocking 'em dead" all over the Orpheum circuit, will lead the Majestic bill for Sunday, when Nat Nazarro and his two famous pickaninies will perform. Nazarro is an athlete, and the two little darlings are his assistants. Advance reports, and reviews of the act from the Twin Cities, where it has been headlined this week, indicate that the combination is irresistible, and something really new in the way of vaudeville.
